A picturesque summer girl looks coquettishly from the first page of August FASHIONS, her dainty wrap and hat giving a hint of the early fall styles, with their combinations of silk, chiffon, feathers and flowers. The fashion plates are numerous and elegant, showing gowns, suits and millinery for all occasions, not only for the older members of the family, but the tiny tots as well. Especially beautiful is an elaborate garden party gown from Redfern, while less complicated costumes abound for the benefit of the home dressmaker. The Paris letter and other fashion articles give the latest information regarding colors, fabrics and caprices of the moment.

The full page art picture, a feature highly prized by subscribers who wish to make a collection of copies of noted paintings, is this month by the artist Luke Fildes, R. A., and represents "An August Day in Venice."

Every reader of FASHIONS who is musically inclined will be delighted to find the "Cuckoo Polka," a bright and catchy composition, written especially for FASHIONS by Harry Zickel, the author of the famous "Black America March," of which 200,000 copies were sold in one year. Combining brilliancy of effect with ease of execution, it is sure to make a hit. In length it is equal to the 40c pieces sold at the music stores.

THE BATTLE WAGES.

Strikers Still After the DeArmit Miners.

Delegations With Brass Bands Arriving Hourly---President Dolan Arrested.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 2.—The battle of the striking miners, to induce DeArmit's men to come out, waged last night and the early morning, with apparently no further gains over last week. The marchers at 9 a. m. in the vicinity of the Turtle Creek mine numbered 1,500. This is by actual count of a body of 1,026 men and a careful estimate of smaller bodies of men. If reports received by the leaders are true, and there is no reason to doubt them, there will be 3,500 men on the ground by 2 p. m. to try to shame DeArmit's men to come out. Other bodies of men are arriving every few minutes with brass bands and enthusiasm. This means a long fight if the leaders are able to continue the good order among the men. So far during the marching not a striker has shown any sign of the use of liquor.

While the ranks of the strikers at Turtle Creek were being augmented, parties of marchers were in the field to induce the miners not to go to work. About 200 gathered before the Turtle Creek mines before the men started to work. A line was opened up, and as the diggers neared the pit mouth, they passed between the lines of the strikers. There was no attempt at force, but a number of the diggers stopped and talked with the strikers, and then passed on into the mine. Some were induced to come out. About an hour later the strikers moved off in the direction of the McCrea school house. Plum Creek mine was visited by them. At the Oak Hill mine a demonstration was made, but no men were induced to quit.

How many men are in the mine is not known. The strikers say only eight, but it is known that fifteen new men went in. At the Sandy Creek mine many went out. The company says 100 are at work, while strikers say only twenty-two went in.

At 9:15 o'clock the marchers left Turtle Creek about 2,000 strong and started for the mass meeting at the McCrea school house. The procession was headed by four brass bands. The meeting is scheduled for 11 o'clock.

President Dolan, who was arrested early this morning on a charge of riot and unlawful assemblage, gave bail for a hearing on Wednesday and again joined the strikers.

Speaking of his arrest, Mr. Dolan commented bitterly on the action of Superintendent DeArmit. He accused the operators of trying to incite riot by causing an arrest at such a time and place. He claims he was not disturbing anyone and that his arrest was made without cause. He thinks the arrest, however, will help the cause of the strike.

MARCHING TO TURTLE CREEK.

PITTSBURG, Pa., August 2.—Three hundred strikers from the Beech Cliff mines, on the Pan Handle railroad, marched through the city at 2 o'clock this morning. They were bound for Camp Determination, at Turtle Creek. The men were mostly foreigners and carried canes and clubs. About an hour after the Beech Cliff men marched through another ghostly regiment, entered the city from the west and marched silently toward the DeArmit mines. They were the Imperial miners, 400 strong, headed by a brass band. The first delegation also had a band. The march was without noise of any kind, until the Oakland power house was passed, when the band started up a lively march. It is stated that all the miners of the Montour Run railway will be at the meeting this morning. None of these delegations had been counted upon by the strikers' officials when listing the expected recruits from all over this end of the district.

Four hundred men from the third Monongahala pool miners passed through McKeesport at 2:30 this morning for Turtle Creek. They were headed by two bands and the American flag. The procession was an orderly one.

The detachment sent to Plum Creek mines this morning found that DeArmit had stolen another march on them. It was the intention to hold a meeting at the Bethelhelm school house and to invite the Plum Creek miners there to attend. When the marchers reached the place they found that a fence had been erected around the school property, and notices posted that no trespassing would be allowed. This move engendered considerable ill feeling, as the school house grounds were the only public place in the vicinity of the mines where a meeting could be held. The leaders of the marchers said they would not disobey the notices, and the men marched back to McCrea's school house.

Speeches were also made in the Italian and Hungarian languages by interperters. Between 5,000 and 6,000 miners were present. The greatest enthusiasm was manifested, but there was no disorder. The speakers all cautioned the strikers against breaking the law.

President Dolan, who arrived later, said that out of 1,000 miners employed in the three mines, but sixty were at work. Secretary Warner was in the city this morning, and sent out two wagon loads of provisions to camp. He said that he will be too busy with the commissiary department to go into court today to make application for an injunction restraining Sheriff Lowry from interfering with the marchers, but that he would place the matter before Judge Sheffer as soon as he had time. None of the district officials were present when the big meeting at McCrea's school house was called to order. Speeches were made by M. P. Carrick, M. J. Connahan, Wm. Carney, and Mrs. T. J. Jones, of Chicago.

JOINING THE STRIKERS.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Aug. 2.—One by one additions are being made to the number of strikers in the Fair mont district under the efforts of Joseph W. Rea and one assistant. Eleven hundred and thirty men are now with the strikers, while nearly three times that number are still at work. It is thought that this will not be the case a week hence. Rea's work among the miners is proving very successful. The secret of the general strike, however, should there be one, is that the operators are getting no contracts of over ten days duration. The men say this is no permanent benefit for them so they will join the strikers.

MORE DEVELOPMENTS DUE.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 2.—There were about fifty miners at work in the mines around Clarksburg today out of about 500. There will be further developments after 3 o'clock this afternoon, when it is expected that all the miners will lay down their picks.

MINERS FIGHT.

WASHINGTON, Ind., Aug. 2.—This morning the miners started to work at Cabel & Co.'s mine. They were met by strikers, who requested them not to return to work. The debate ended in a free fight, in which clubs and fists played a part. Gibson Lett, one of the men who attempted to go to work, was badly used up, his scalp laid open.

GLASS BLOWERS

Being Displaced by Machines in the Fruit Jar Trade.

A Muncie Firm Serves Notice of Dismissal Upon 200 of Its Men.

MUNCIE, Ind., Aug. 2.—Ball Bros., among the largest fruit jar manufacturers in the world, are preparing to introduce machines for blowing fruit jars, and have sent notice to some of their employes that their services will not be needed after this month. The blowers say that 200 have received these notices. The firm reports that not all the men blowers will be replaced at once, but that the machines will gradually be introduced. They claim that the machines will do better work than the men, and at one-half the cost. It is expected that glass jars will be brought into competition with tinware, and that the demand will be largely increased owing to the cheapness.

COL. HURD ASPIRES

To Fill the Shoes Now Worn by Patrick Ryan.

Was Custodian of the Postoffice Once and Would Like to be Again—Sends a Petition to Washington.

Col. O. D. Hurd wants to be custodian of the postoffice and would like to see Patrick Ryan removed because he is a democrat, but the colonel is likely to be disappointed. Mr. Ryan's job comes under the head of civil service and it is no easy matter to oust him. It is going to be hard for a conscientious man like Postmaster Page to find any charge against the present incumbent, as he has been a careful and painstaking employe. Colonel Hurd has sent a petition with numerous signatures on to Washington, asking for the place, but he will find that the much coveted plum cannot be plucked so easily.

FEUD SETTLED

By Both Men Being Mortally Wounded.

Charles Fox and William Mackey Are the Participants---Both Are Tough Citizens.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 2.—Stringtown, an oil town near Sisterville, W. Va., was the scene of a sensational shooting affray, in which two men received probably mortal wounds. The shooting was the result of a feud between Charles Fox, a resident of Stringtown, and William Mackey, a colored gambler. Fox, who was intoxicated, entered a gambling room last evening, and upon seeing Mackey, at once commenced to shoot. Mackey was unarmed, but got a hatchet and closed in with his assailant and inflicted some serious wounds. Fox broke away and loaded his gun the second time and commenced shooting, and by this time some one had handed Mackey a gun and a general fusilade followed. Fox received only one bullet, but it struck him over the heart, inflicting a fatal wound. Mackey was shot once in the groin and another bullet shattered his left arm. He is in a precarious condition and may not recover.

LOST THE CASE.

The Famous Land Question Decided.

Champaigne County Loses a Fight in Which Immense Tracts of Land Were Involved.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Commissioner Hermann, of the general land office, has decided adversely to the claim of Champaigne county, Illinois, as grantee of the state in the claim of Illinois for indemnification or repayment of purchase money received by the government from the sale of certain lands between 1850-7 and claimed by the state to have inured to it as swamp land. This is a long pending controversy between the federal and state governments and three different examinations have been made in the field by various special agents and in different years payments have been made of other lands likewise involved. The original selection claimed as a basis for indemnity aggregated 160,586 acres. The decision is a lengthy recapitulation of the evidence and the law, as this is a test case involving 100 other similar claims pending here. Commissioner Herman decides the lands not to have been swamp lands within the meaning of the grant.

ACCEPTED A REDUCTION.

Puddlers Have Agreed to the Terms of the Manufacturers.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 2.—It was daylight yesterday before the iron manufacturers and puddlers of the amalgamated conference agreed on a scale for puddling. There were twenty-five puddlers on the amalgamated committee of one hundred, and the puddlers had the say about accepting or rejecting the proposition directly affecting them. The puddlers made several attempts to effect a compromise and obtain $4.25 a ton for puddling, but the manufacturers positively refused to recede from their demand for a reduction from $4.50 to $4. When the puddlers held their last secret meeting to consider the matter the vote stood 13 to 12 in favor of taking the whole reduction, and this portion of the difficulty was at an end. The new scale is as follows: "Four dollars a ton on 1-cent card rates; $4.25 on 1 1-10 card rate; $4.75 on 1 3-10 rate; $5 on 1 4-10 rate, and $5.25 on 1½ rate, a 1-cent card rate meaning when bar iron is selling for 1 cent a pound, etc. An adjournment was taken at 7 o'clock this morning until 10 o'clock Monday morning, when it is expected the finishers' scale will be adjusted and the whole trouble brought to an end.

DAYTON, Ohio, August 2.—Chas. Brown, the left-handed pitcher who won the game for Dayton yesterday was sold to the Cleveland league team last night for $800, and is to join the club Louisville. If Brown does not prove satifactory, he is to come back to Dayton. He has won twelve games out of the thirteen he has pitched at home this year and is a good batter. He has not made an error in fielding his position. Dayton mourns Brown's loss, but the fans knew he would be drafted in the fall.

QUARRYMEN STRIKE.

Nearly 500 of Them Go Out Today.

CHICAGO, August 2.—Four hundred employes of the Western stone company walked out of the quarries at Lemont today because the management refused to grant an increase of 25 cents a day in wages. Twenty-five men working for the Illinois stone company laid down their tools for the same reason and operations in the extensive quarries around Lemont are now at a stand still.

LABORERS STRIKE

And Delay the Work Upon a County Building.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 2.—Over fifty laborers employed in attending stone masons and brick layers at work on the new county building struck today for a raise from $1.25 to $1.50 and $1.60 respectively for eight hours work. The contractors decline to pay the wages demanded, as they are more than the rates being paid on other buildings. Meanwhile work on the court house is at a standstill.

WHITES MASSACRED.

Australians Go to New Guinea After Gold.

Natives Put Them to Death With Tomahawks---The Governor Will Punish the Murderers.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 2.—The steamer Miowera from Sydney brings information that news of still another massacre has been received at Sydney. Not long ago great numbers of Australia's huge army of unemployed were attracted by stories of fabulous gold panning at Piqua and other interior points in New Guinea. Their ranks have been terribly thinned by murder, starvation and fatal swamp fevers. To make matters worse every native who helped a white man was marked for the tomahawk.

The remnant of those who went there met with misfortune and ruin. The stores gave out and for months they lived on "damper" and tea. Natives in the vicinity claimed to be ill-treated by the government in the way of scant stores and decided to teach the government a lesson by massacreing all the whites within reach. The whites were raided at night and put to death with tomahawks, being easy victims. After long suffering they were sick and emaciated and could not defend themselves. Many massacres had occurred in the same place previously, but the governor has never attempted to punish the murderers. Later news confirms the massacre which occurred eighty-five miles from Port Morsby. The entire settlement of natives and whites had their heads split open by a large band of savages. The government has sent a large body of military police to surround the natives and shoot if necessary. Wholesale arrests will be made. The natives will be brought back manacled in the hold of a steamer chartered for the purpose

The members of the Outing Bicycle club also surprised Mr. Johnson by presenting him with a handsome fishing outfit, consisting of a fine jointed pole, reel, etc.

THE UNION JACK

Floats Over the Solomon Group of Islands.

The British Is Willing to Protect All the Islands of the World---Rich in Cocoanuts.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 2.—The steamer Miowera, which arrived from Sydney, brought details of the recent annexation of the Solomon group. The work was done by her British majesty's ship Wallaroo. The first island made a colony was Bellona, which the Wallaroo reached on July 16. The union jack was hoisted with the usual ceremonies. The natives were very shy at first and much frightened by the salute but they became reassured on the ship leaving and removed the notice of the board of annexation and dug up the bottle containing the proclamation. The entente cordiale was first established by the ship rescuing a native blown out to sea in a canoe.

Runnell island was also placed under British protection the same day. The island is difficult of access and no natives were seen. The Wallaroo called at Maru sound and proceeded to Stewart islands, annexing them. The natives are of a high type and very friendly. They were much pleased at becoming British subjects.

Runnell and Bellona lie to the southward of Gundalcanar, in the Solomon group, and were apparently discovered by Captain Wilkinson, in the Indispensible, in 1790. It is said copper ore is abundant on them. According to Lieutenant Richards, Runnell is about forty-five miles long and six or seven miles wide, of a uniform height of 400 feet, densely wooded, but apparently affords no anchorage. The natives resemble those in Tanna, in the New Hebrides. All the islands are rich in cocoanuts

LAKE OF OIL.

An Analysis Shows It is of Marvelous Richness.

Company Has Been Formed to Put it on the Market---Hills Rich in Coal and Asphalt.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—While the whole world is excited over the gold discovery in the north, sight has been lost of another discovery that promises to be of great value in the development of this section. Some months ago a lake of almost pure petroleum was discovered and samples were sent to Seattle for analysis. The report of these has just been made public and the find is reported to be of most marvelous richness. A company has been formed in Seattle to handle the product and travellers from there say the company intends to put it on the Alaskan market at once. The lake is of unknown depth, several miles wide and five to six miles in length, and the quality of the petroleum is said to be of the finest. The lake is only two miles from the ocean. The hills surrounding are said to be rich in coal and asphalt. It is the expectation of the owners of the lake to take its products into the mining camps of northern Alaska whenever the water ways will permit.

NEW STEAMSHIPS

To be Used in the Alaskan Trade on the Yukon.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 2.—The Northern Transportation and Trading company has let a contract to Morin Bros., of Seattle, for the immediate construction of three new river steamers to ply on the Yukon river from St. Michael to Dawson City, and from there to be used in the vicinity of St. Michael. The same company acknowledged that it would bring three steamships around the Horn from the Atlantic coast this winter to Seattle and use them on the run to St. Michael. The steamships will be large and fine, but the company has not decided whether it will build or purchase some already built.

The Chinese Have Lifted the Embargo on West River.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Alfred Alf, vice consul of the United States in charge at Canton, China, has informed the state department that the water course in that district, commonly known as the West river, has finally been opened to trade and commerce as far westward as Woo-Chan-Fu, popularly known as Ny-Chan, which has been made a duty port. Several other places along the river also have been opened to trade. The opening took place June 4, a Chinese holiday known as the "Dragon Boat Festival." Mr. Alf says one small American schooner already is entered for traffic on the river.

Change of Admirals.

Boston Unions Stand by Prof. Andrews.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 2.—The resignation of President Andrews, of Brown university, was considered by 150 delegates at yesterday's meeting of the Central Labor union. It was deplored and the policy of the officers in criticizing him for his economic principles was condemned in resolutions. The resolutions speak of the intolerances and illiberality of the trustees, and declares that the action of the officers of the Brown university is a most ominous sign of the growth of the plutocratic spirit in our colleges.

ARION KILLED.

The Daring Aerial Performer Hurled to His Death,

While Going Through His Bicycle Act on a Live Wire He Meets With the Accident---Remains Brought Here.

To the hundreds of people who remember the marvellous performances of "Arion," the aerial wonder, whose exhibitions were the closing features of Robison park last summer, will be shocked to learn that the noted actor met a terrible death while engaged in one of his acts at Brooklyn last night. His remains will be brought to this city tonight and conveyed to the home of the grief-stricken widow, at No. 318 South Harrison street

In the presence of ten thousand people "Arion," whose right name is Donald McDonell, started to do his bicycle act on a high live wire. Decorated with many vari-colored incandescent lights, he was riding on a live trolley wire, seventy-five feet above the ground, when he lost one of his pedals, and with a cry of terror fell to the ground. He was almost instantly killed.

The Brooklyn Heights Railroad company for several weeks had been advertising McDonell, who is known as Professor Arion, as the greatest living aerial cyclist. His thrilling feat of riding his bicycle across a live trolley wire high in midair was billed to take place for the first time in the east at Ridgewood park last night. This and the annual saengerfest of the Hesse Volks Verein, of this city, which began yesterday, attracted a great crowd to the park.

A wire was stretched seventy-five feet in the air between two poles a hundred feet apart, in Ridgewood park. This wire was connected with a trolley wire and carried a full voltage when the cyclist walked confidently to one of the poles.

The tires had been removed from his wheel, which was covered with incandescent lights, as were his clothes. Attendants placed McDonell in a sling at 9:30 o'clock, and then as the excited crowd cheered wildly, he and his bicycle were hoisted to the platform around the top of the pole.

After bowing and smiling at the broad expanse of upturned faces, McDonell mounted his wheel and dropped the small wire he held in his hand across the live trolley wire. Instantly the incandescent lights became illuminated and the spectators sent up a great cheer.

Prof. Arion, known as the "Hero of Niagara Falls," because of his daring feats performed on the slack wire over the seething waters, was about to perform the greatest act ever seen in Brooklyn. The cheering ended, the spectators held their breath in nervous terror as the man far above their heads started on his perilous ride. McDonell rode from the platform and started on his journey. He had ridden about twenty feet when the man in some way lost one of his pedals. In the effort to regain it he lost his balance. He made a frantic effort for a moment to regain his upright position, and then, as all gazed at him in horror, the man and wheel fell together to the ground. Both turned completely over in the air, and the bicycle struck with crushing force. McDonell was hurled into the air by the rebound and then fell unconscious.

Before he struck a thousand terrified screams went up from the crowd, and a moment later there was a panic. Men rushed about like insane persons and many women fainted from fright.

The body had not been on the ground more than a minute when Dr. Charles J. Hettesheimer, a member of the Hesse Volks Verein, worked his way through the panic-stricken crowd and raised the man. McDonell was alive, but died a moment later in the physician's arms.

There is no doubt that Arion was one of the finest wire performers that ever exhibited in this country. When the Robison park management hired him last October they found him to be the best drawing card of the season. During his stay here he became acquainted with Miss Bessie Stine, daughter of the late Daniel Stine, and their friendship ripened into courtship and marriage. Since then Arion has considered Fort Wayne his home, but he made frequent trips away to fill engagements. He went to Brooklyn about three weeks ago, leaving his wife here. Louis Heilbroner, who was a personal friend of Arion's, says that he possessed an agreeable personality and was a generous fellow. He was twenty-eight years old, well built and good looking, and always appeared to be indifferent to his act. His career has been interesting and sensational. He formerly resided at Toronto, Canada, where relatives survive him. The funeral will be announced later.

The confectionery owned by George Barens at Wabash was entered by a thief a few days ago and robbed of a considerable amount of money. The thief, a young boy, was captured.

Misses Mamie and Loretto Dittoe are visiting friends in Detroit.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Oppenheimer Celebrate.

The First Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary Ever Celebrated in Jewish Circles in Fort Wayne.

Yesterday was witnessed one of the most notable golden weddings that has occurred in this city for many years, the central figures being the venerable Abraham Oppenheimer and his estimable wife. It was the first Jewish golden wedding ever celebrated in Fort Wayne, on which account much importance and was attached to it in Hebrew circles. A happy coincidence of the affair was the fact that upon the same day Mr Oppenheimer was seventy-nine years old, making it a double anniversary to celebrate.

Mr. Oppenheimer came to this city in May, 1846, and started in business with a peddler's pack. He was industrious and also prosperous, for four years later he was able to establish himself in business with the late Siegmund Redelsheimer in the general store trade, on the site now occupied by Pfeiffer & Schlatter, the hardware merchants, on Columbia street. A few years later he formed a partnership with F. Nirdlinger, which partnership was continued until 1868, when he engaged in the produce business, being a member of the firm of Becker, Oppenheimer & Co. That partnership was continued until 1878 when the firm was dissolved. He continued in the same line of business for a short time when he retired, and has since then lived at the ease which his many years of activity earned for him. He bought and moved into the residence he now occupies in 1866, and has lived there ever since. He was married in 1847 to Miss Emma Epstein, and first lived in the old frame house now occupied as a fish market, standing on the corner of Harmony Court and West Main street. The building at that time was located where the Hamilton bank now stands, and right next to it was the undertaking establishment of the venerable Louis Peltier. The court house square was a marsh and the court house was a series of buildings, one of the county offices being located in each one of them.

Mr. Oppenheimer was one of the founders of the Hebrew congregation in this city, was one of its first trustees and has been an officer continuously ever since, now being its vice-president. He is also a charter member of B'nai B'rith society, which was founded about 1869. Yesterday was certainly a happy day and a happy reunion for him and his. The living children of this couple are Fred Oppenheimer, of this city, aged 50; Mrs. Mrs. Henry Stettner, of Toledo, aged 48; Rudolph Oppenheimer, of Galveston, aged 46; Mrs. Joseph Wiler, of Logansport, aged 44; Mrs. Herman Nathan, of Chicago, aged 41, and Mrs. A. Gutmacher, of Baltimore, aged 25; all of whom with the exception of Rudolph, were their guests yesterday.

There are ten grandchildren, and Lawrence Henry Lang, who was just five weeks old yesterday, was the guest of honor, he being the only great grandchild. The trustees of the congregation have handsomely remembered the aged couple, their testimonial being in the shape of two handsome leather covered chairs, while the Hebrew Ladies' Benevolent society sent a jardinier and palm as a reminder. Other presents were also received.

THE Salvation army announces that it will at once establish a post on the banks of Klondyke creek. While everybody else in that neighborhood is madly plunging after one of the main sources of evil the Salvationists propose to be on hand with the remedy which may be needed when disappointment leads to despair.

IT appears to be the idea of Colon Fred Grant, who has left the New York board of police commissioners in a huff, that no "dishonorable" means should be employed in ferreting out lawbreakers, and that in dealing with thugs and crooks and thieves those methods only should be tolerated which regulate the intercourse between gentlemen. This is really carrying the West Point business most too far.

WHEN Blucher visited London, sometime after Waterloo, his hosts, desiring to show him at a glance the extent of their city, took him to the dome of St. Paul's. The famous Prussian warrior, field glass in hand, surveyed the acres of buildings at his feet, took in the wealth of its banking and business center and perceived the riches of its warehouses and docks. At length he lowered the field glass and exclaimed: "Mein Gott! mein Gott! Vot a city vor to plundare!"

THE courts will have to decide when the new tariff law went into effect. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Howell has decided that it began business at midnight Friday, though it was not signed until about half past 4 o'clock on Saturday. Charles Devay, president of the New York Brokers' association, speaking for himself and his associates and after consulting eminent counsel, alleges that it couldn't go into operation until midnight Saturday, for the reason that, though the government takes no account of fractions of a day, congress cannot, under the constitution, enact retroactive legislation and the ruling of Mr. Howell would be expost facto for the time between midnight Friday until the signing of the bill, about half past 4 Saturday. During that interval the difference in the rates of duties on goods taken from the New York custom house amounted to $300,000 in favor of the government and suit has been entered to recover the money which was paid under protest.

SONS OF VETERANS.

Their Sixteenth Annual Encampment at Indianapolis.

The sixteenth annual national encampment of the Sons of Veterans will be held at Indianapolis from September 9 to 15 of this year. The Commercial club, which has had much to do with securing the encampment, has announced the following executive committee to have charge of the arrangements, composed of three members of the club and six members of the order: Charles A. Bookwalter, chairman; A. M. Glossbrenner, secretary; N. J. McGuire, James Noel, W. H. Armstrong, Frank Martin, Allan Hendricks, W. S. Garber and Harry McGrew. Chairman Bookwalter is authorized to appoint sub-committees as he may deem necessary. The official headquarters of the encampment will be at the Denison house and the sessions will be held in Tomlinson hall. It is difficult to tell how many members will attend the encampment. A PRETTY BAD MIX UP.

It Was Thrillingly Realistic, but It Seems It Wasn't Art.

The old property man seated himself on a moss covered "practical" stump while waiting for the play to begin, and, in response to my question, said:

"Mistakes will occur and things will get mixed up in the theatrical business as well as in any other. I remember one season when I was with 'The Country Farm;' everything real, you know—real cows, horses, chickens and all that sort of stuff. One act was in the city, and there were real fire engines, cable cars, ferryboats, policemen, and such like; good play and took in money by the barrelful, but hard work for me; had to buy fresh vegetables for the cows to eat in full view of the audience and look after a raft of other things.

"One night out at Zanesville, O., just as the curtain went up, the bay mule, who appeared in the first tableau, kicked the brass cannon used in the Fourth of July scene. He was a powerful kicker, having been practicing on me for about three months, and the heat generated by the striking of his shoe against the cannon set off the charge, and it blazed away right among the real cows and other animals. The whole caboodle of 'em stampeded straight on to the stage. The real chickens also flew on, and the fire engine horses likewise naturally charged in, the racket being right in their line. The stage hands and most of the actors rushed on to try to straighten out the tangle.

"About this time a water pipe burst, and something set off the thunder machine, and it began to thunder worse than I had ever heard it before in a long and eventful life. This jarred the snow department, and the paper flakes began to flutter down pretty lively, while a box of red fire in the wings caught from the smoldering cannon wadding and cast a lurid and fitful glare o'er the general cataclysm, as I may call it. The real Durham bull tossed the heavy villain on his horns, and the real old Southdown ram butted the comic man across the footlights and back into the neighborhood of the fifth row, landing him in the lap of his honor the mayor. It was a scene long to be remembered, with the chickens flying up into the proscenium boxes and cackling like mad, and the orchestra trying to play the whole thing down with a redhot selection from Wagner. But we got it all straightened out at last."

"But what about the audience?" inquired an innocent listener. "Wasn't there a panic?"

"Not a bit of it. That's the funny part of the whole thing. They were a very intelligent audience, right up to date on the realistic drama, and they thought it was the first act. Never heard such applause in my life. The manager wanted to repeat the thing every night in place of the opening scene, but the author wouldn't listen to it. He said it wasn't art."—Harper's Magazine.

THE QUEEN'S PLAISANCE.

Greenwich House the Favorite Residence of the Great Elizabeth.

John Bennett's serial in St. Nicholas, "Master Skylark," is a story of the time of Shakespeare and contains many quaint pictures of old English life. The hero and his fellow scholars of St. Paul's are commanded to sing before the queen, and there is the following account of their reception:

A smoking dinner was waiting them of whitebait with red pepper and a yellow juice so sour that Nick's mouth drew up in a knot, but it was very good. There were besides silver dishes full of sugared red currants and heaps of comfits and sweetmeats, which Master Gyles would not allow them even to touch, and saffron cakes with raisins in them and spiced hot cordial out of tiny silver cups. Bareheaded pages clad in silk and silver lace waited upon them as if they were fledgeling kings, but the boys were too hungry to care for that or to try to put on airs and waded into the meat and drink as if they had been starved for a fortnight.

But when they were done Nick saw that the table off which they had eaten was inlaid with pearl and silver filigree and that the tablecloth was of silk, with woven metal work and gems set in it worth more than 1,000 crowns. He was very glad he had eaten first, for such wonderful service would have taken away his appetite.

And truly a wonderful palace was the Queen's Pluisance, as Greenwich House was called. Elizabeth was born in it, and so loved it most of all. There she pleased oftenest to receive and grant audiences to envoys from foreign courts, and there, on that account, as was always her proud, jealous way, she made a blinding show of glory and of wealth, of science, art and power that England, to the eyes which saw her there, might stand in second place to no dominion in the world, however rich or great.

It was a very house of gold.

Over the door where the lads marched in was the queen's device, a golden rose, with a motto set below in letters of gold, "Dieu et mon droit," and upon the walls were blazoned coats of noble arms on branching golden trees, of pure gold and finest silk, costly beyond compare. The royal presence chamber shone with tapestries of gold, of silver and of oriental silks of as many shifting colors as the birds of paradise and wrought in exquisite design. The throne was set with diamonds, with rubies, garnets and sapphires, glittering like a pastry crust of stars and garnished with gold lace work, pearls and ornament, and under the velvet canopy which hung above the throne was embroidered in seed pearls, "Vivat Regina Elizabetha!" There was no door without a gorgeous usher there, no room without a page, no corridor without a guard, no post without a man of noble birth to fill it.

On the walls of the great gallery were masterly paintings of great folk, globes showing all the stars fast in the sky and drawings of the world and all its parts, so real that one could see the savages in the new world hanging to the underside by their feet, like flies upon the ceiling. How they stuck was more than Nick could make out, and where they landed if they chanced to slip and fall troubled him a deal, until in the sheer multiplication of wonders he could not wonder any more.

MRS. PETERSON'S STORY.

I have suffered with womb trouble over fifteen years. I had inflammation, enlargement and displacement of the womb.

The doctor wanted me to take treatments, but I had just begun taking Mrs. Pinkham's Compound, and my husband said I had better wait and see how much good that would do me. I was so sick when I began with her medicine, I could hardly be on my feet. I had the backache constantly, also headache, and was so dizzy. I had heart trouble, it seemed as though my heart was in my throat at times choking me. I could not walk around and I could not lie down, for then my heart would beat so fast I would feel as though I was smothering. I had to sit up in bed nights in order to breathe. I was so weak I could not do anything.

I have now taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and used three packages of Sanative Wash, and can say I am perfectly cured. I do not think I could have lived long if Mrs. Pinkham's medicine had not helped me.—MRS. JOSEPH PETERSON, 513 East St., Warren, Pa.

SHOOTING A RHINOCEROS.

Two of Them Charged a Hunter In an African Forest.

Mr. H. W. Seton-Karr, in The Century, describes his experiences in "After Big Game In Africa and India." Shortly after bagging his first elephant the author started after the two horned rhinoceros. He gives the following account of his experience:

As I came round a bush I saw at the bottom of a kind of natural alley in the forest, framed in like a picture by the trees, a massive old female rhinoceros. She was facing me and standing half in sunshine, half in shadow. From a bush protruded the hind quarters of another. Signing to the Somalis to keep back, I instantly sat down and "drew a bead" upon her chest. The distance was about 70 yards, and, although the wind was adverse to her and we had made no noise, she must have seen us like moving shadows among the trees and was evidently full of suspicion and distrust.

If I ever took careful aim, it was at that moment, and under cover of the smoke I shifted my position as the rhinoceros came charging down upon us, giving three or four sharp whiffs like jets of steam, evidently with the intention of clearing the enemy away from the rear before making her escape toward the front against the wind. Having, as she supposed, effected this maneuver—a very usual one on the part of the rhinoceros—she swerved off, and the two broke away across the forest, crash after crash dying away in the distance, marking their course as they receded. On perceiving the rhinoceros go off apparently uninjured, my Somalis gave full vent to their disappointment, making extravagant gestures and using what sounded like bad language, yet still in half whispers, as they knew instinctively that the animals might not have gone far, after all, especially if the one I had fired at had really received a mortal wound.

The tracks we now followed were deep holes and furrows imprinted by the animals at full speed. We had not gone far before I again saw the larger of the two rhinoceroses standing broadside on and quite motionless under a bush which concealed the head. Giving my three Somalis to understand that they must remain quiet, I aimed once more at the animal's shoulder, taking care that no twig or branch was in the line of fire, knowing how easily a bullet may become deflected. My shot was followed by a couple of short, angry snorts, the stamp of heavy feet and an appalling crashing, which advanced and then swept round toward the left. Another cautious advance on our part, and not far off I saw, near the center of an open space, the smaller of the two rhinoceroses, but not the larger one.

A shot delivered standing, from the shoulder, was followed by two shrill squeaks as the animal tottered a few paces and fell over on its side—a sound most disproportionate to the size and bulk of so large a creature, but which I instantly recognized, from Sir Samuel Baker's description, as the death cry of the rhinoceros, and the hearing of it filled me with a hunter's joy. While I was reloading the Somalis had crept forward with their spears, relying upon their own agility in evading any charge delivered by the larger one, which I knew must surely be somewhere near at hand. After gloating over a low bush they executed a war dance upon the ground beyond, for there were the two rhinoceroses lying stone dead almost side by side. My Somalis gave way to shouts and exuberent mirth. They were transformed from scowling fiends, soured by the white man's folly, into radiant brown angels, and I allowed them to stroke my face and pat me on the back without a reprimand.

Intelligible Fog Signals.

Among the greatest dangers to navigation is collision caused by fog, which arises principally from the fact that while one ship can hear by signals that another ship is near or approaching neither vessel can determine in what direction the other is moving. To overcome this difficulty a system based on sirens and fog horns has been devised, which, while simple, appears to be effective. Having due regard to the usual direction of vessels over the principal ocean courses, a single sound has been taken to indicate a common course, say easterly, while combinations of two sounds indicate all of the usual points of the compass. Thus a course due west is indicated by a single horn blow, one due east by a siren blow, north and south by combinations, such as two horns and two whistles, and so on.—Exchange.

Learned Late.

MEDICINE BAGS.

Amulets Used by the Untutored Savages of the Old World.

Cook, in his first voyage to New Zealand, speaks of little bags of perfume worn by the Maoris round their necks, and it would seem from the observations of Colenso, as given in "The Transactions of the New Zealand Institute," that these little satchels, or medicine bags, contained four perfumes—a sweet scented moss, a fragrant fern, an odoriferous gum and taramea.

The taramea is the amulet, or talisman. It is a gum procured from a rare and very prickly leaved alpine plant, collected with great difficulty and with many superstitious ceremonies, and is said to be obtainable only by young virgins after many prayers, charms, etc., recited by the priest or medicine man.

The medicine bags of the natives of Africa are not so simple as those of the New Zealanders, perhaps because the purposes for which they are required are more complicated. Of these the cure of disease is the least and the making of rain the most important.

Mr. Holden gives the contents of the rainmaker's medicine bag as "charcoal made of bats, inspissated renal deposit of the mountain coney, which is used medicinally in the shape of pills, as a good antispasmodic; jackals' livers, baboons' and lions' hearts, hairy calculi from the bowels of old cows, serpents' skins and vertebræ and every kind of tuber, root and plant to be found in the country" ("Kaffir Races," page 310). Among the Zulus and Matabele the kings are the chief medicine men, and a description is given of King Lobengula when busily engaged in making medicine on the great feast day of the Matabele in a special hut prepared for the purpose.

The king of Swaziland is also high priest, prophet and rainmaker to his people, and, as Mr. Mather says in his "Golden South Africa:" "In a bag of goatskin in his own special hut he has treasures—all sorts of odds and ends. A peep into that bag discloses knuckle bones of men and beasts, pieces of dried flesh, bits of hair, roots and stalks of plants, rocks, scraps of broken bottles, together with an old tattered photograph or two. When rain is wanted, Umbandine gets his queer bag out. He calls one or two witch doctors to attend him and then performs some tricks. An ox is sacrificed, after which his majesty declares that it will rain."

In this multitude of charms the idea of medicine as a cure for disease seems to be entirely lost sight of, but probably some of them may be used internally, for roots and stalks of plants usually figure among them, and it may be observed that savages have everywhere discovered the medicinal uses of their native roots and plants and have in many instances initiated Europeans in their virtues. The Kaffirs always carry and use the root of the male fern as an anthelmintic, and there is a certain root known among the Dutch at the Cape as "David's root," eagerly sought by the Hottentots and Bushmen, and dug up by them with much ceremony when the sun is at a particular point in the heavens, the digger using many precautions that his or her shadow may not rest upon it. This root is a powerful tonic and is used by them as such, and from them has been transferred to European medicine chests. These untutored savages know also the value of mints as nerve soothers and employ the leaves of a native mint to bind upon the head in case of headache. We might, indeed, cite instances innumerable in which valuable plants have been introduced into our pharmacopœia from native sources, but will only mention the coca, now so highly prized, which has been in use in Central America and Mexico for who shall say how many centuries.—Chambers' Journal.

QUEEN ELIZABETH.

Christmas Revels Before Her Majesty In Greenwich House.

In St. Nicholas there is an account of Christmas revels before Queen Elizabeth, the description occurring in John Bennett's serial, "Master Skylark." The following is the passage:

The palace corridors were lined with guards. Gentlemen pensioners under arms went flashing to and fro. Now and then through the inner throng some handsome page with wind blown hair and rainbow colored cloak pushed to the great door, calling: "Way, sirs—way for my lord! Way for my lady of Aldersgate!" and, one by one, or in blithe groups, the courtiers, clad in silks and satins, velvets, jewels and lace of gold, came up through the lofty folding doors to their place in the hall.

There, where the usher of the black rod stood, and the gentlemen of the chamber came and went with golden chains about their necks, were bowing and scraping without stint and reverent civility, for men that were wise and noble were passing by, men that were handsome and brave, and ladies sweet as a summer day and as fair to see as spring laughed by their sides and chatted behind their fans or daintily nibbled comfits, lacking anything to say.

The windows were all curtained in, making a nighttime in midday, and from the walls and galleries flaring links and great bouquets of candles threw an eddying flood of yellow light across the stirring scene. From clump to clump of banner staves and burnished arms, spiked above the waistcoat, garlands of red berried holly, spruce and mistletoe were twined across the tapestry, till all the room was bound about with a chain of living green.

There were sweet odors floating through the air and hazy threads of fragrant smoke from perfumes burning in rich braziers, and under foot was the crisp, clean rustle of new rushes.

Master Gyles went to and fro, twisting the manuscript of the revel in his hands or pausing kindly to pat some faltering lad upon the back. Nick and Colley were peeping by turns through a hole in the screen at the throng in the audience chamber.

They could see a confusion of fans, jewels and faces and now and again could hear a burst of subdued laughter over the steadily increasing buzz of voices. Then from the gallery above all at once there came a murmur of instruments tuning together. A voice in the corridor was heard calling. "Way here! Way here!" in masterful tones. The tall folding doors at the side of the hall swung wide, and eight dapper pages in white and gold came in with the master of revels. After them came 50 ladies and noblemen clad in white and gold and a guard of gentlemen pensioners with glittering halberds.

There was a sharp rustle. Every head in the audience chamber louted low. Nick's heart gave a great jump, for the queen was there!

She came with an air that was at once serious and royal, bearing herself haughtily, yet with a certain grace and sprightliness that became her very well. She was quite tall and well made, and her quickly changing face was long and fair, though wrinkled and no longer young. Her complexion was clear and of an olive hue, her nose was a little hooked, her firm lips were thin, and her small black eyes, though keen and bright, were pleasant and merry withal. Her hair was a coppery, tawny red and false, moreover. In her ears hung two great pearls, and there was a fine small crown studded with diamonds upon her head, besides a necklace of exceeding fine gold and jewels about her neck. She was attired in a white silk gown bordered with pearls the size of beans, and over it wore a mantle of black silk, cunningly shot with silver threads. Her ruff was vast, her farthingale vaster, and her train, which was very long, was borne by a marchioness who made more ado about it than Elizabeth did of ruling her realm.

Natural Lightning Rods.

The tall Lombardy poplar has a reputation in some parts of Europe as a kind of natural lightning rod. Investigations recently made by Dr. Hess in Switzerland appear to confirm this reputation of the tree. Its wood is an unusually good conductor of electricity as compared with others, while its great height and lack of spreading branches enable it to conduct a lightning stroke straight downward. In order, however, that a poplar tree may serve to protect a building, according to Dr. Hess, its foliage should be allowed to grow as near the ground as possible. It should be removed not less than six or seven feet from the nearest wall. No metallic objects on the building should be near the tree, and its roots should penetrate moist soil.

His Language.

A statement made in good faith, but difficult to accept, was recently offered to his congregation by a country pastor. He had been holding forth on the advantages of plain speaking.

"Why, brethren," he said, bringing his hand down upon the pulpit with great vigor, "there's no need of all these long words and high sounding terms, not a bit. Look at St. Paul! His words were full of the meat of knowledge and help, and he didn't make use of any high-falutin talk. He always spoke in plain, simple English, my brethren."—Youth's Companion.

Pretty Close Quarters.

"Do you have a piano in your family?"

"No."

"I couldn't let the flat to a family with a piano."

"Why not?"

The last tenant had a piano, and her daughter, who played it, knocked a great deal of plastering off the wall behind her with her elbows."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

She Shot Ten Turks.

A little Greek peasant girl was wounded at the battle of Cardiza while fighting side by side with her brother. When her brother was called out to the war, she, having nowhere to go, accompanied him. She thinks she shot about ten Turks before being wounded herself.

Malayan Marriages.

On the Moluccs islands the wives are treated very tenderly by their husbands. The priest who performs the marriage ceremony over a Malayan bridal couple gives to the husband the following monition: "Do not wound your wife with the lance or knife. If she refuses to obey you, take her into a room by herself and chastise her with a handkerchief." Provided the cloth is not tied into a dozen knots, no more gentle method of reproval could be devised.—St. Louis Republic.

"They had a telephone at the farmhouse where I went this summer."

"What did they use it for?"

"They telephoned to town every day for fruits, butter and fresh eggs."—Chicago Record.

CURED

I have suffered for several years with chronic kidney troubles, and a greater portion of the time have been afflicted with rheumatism also. In fact, until I got a box of Dr. Hobbs Sparagus Kidney Pills from the drug store of B. F. Keesling, a couple of weeks ago, I had not been free from pain in many years. I am now glad to say that my rheumatism has left me, and that my old kidney trouble seems to have vanished, and all owing to the merits of your wonderful pills.

The Euphrates.

John Punnett Peters, in his book, "Nippur, or Explorations on the Euphrates," thus describes that great river of history:

"The Euphrates now flows through a dismal desert—a stream of muddy water, with tamarisk and poplar jungles, while licorice and dura fields and a few small towns and villages occupy a narrow, deep depression in a sterile, treeless plateau, inhabited only by nomads. But this has not always been the case. In ancient times Mesopotamia, from the river Khabor northward and westward, seems to have been fairly well wooded, well inhabited and prosperous, while the Syrian side of the river, from the bend by Barbalissus and upward, was rich and densely settled, and even to the south and east of this the ruins of important cities may still be found, and the Assyrian annals tell of forests in the same direction, remnants of which have been but lately rediscovered. In times of prosperity and progress and when a strong power controlled part or the whole of the Euphrates valley, civilization invaded the desert and established posts and roads, which checked and drove back the Arabs and extended the area of cultivable land."

Laws of Teaching.

(1) "There is no school," says Mr. J. M. Greenwood, "unless the father, the mother, the teacher and the pupil keep school together. (2) Know thoroughly the subject to be taught and explain to the pupil why you teach it. (3) Gain and keep the attention of the pupils. Excite their interest. (4) In your teaching use language that your pupils understand. (5) Begin with the known and go by easy steps to the unknown. Take the whole class with you. (6) Excite self activity in the pupils and lead each to discover truth. Show the class how to study. (7) In each lesson let a halt be made, and then have pupils fix points already made, the conclusions reached and the premises upon which each conclusion is based. (8) The teaching must touch the whole nature of the child and stimulate to higher action and more industrious habits of work, of silence, of obedience, honesty and truthfulness. Three-fourths of education is a habit of work."—New York Ledger.

A CLEAR CASE.

An Example of Justice In the Early Days of the West.

"Don't question anything you hear about the administration of justice in the early days of the west," advised the man who had dug and prospected over a large part of it in search of a fortune. "I've seen men out there acting as magistrates that could neither read, write ror talk with an approach to correctness in any language.

"I recall one instance up near the head of Bitter creek. While a miner was down at the saloon one night enjoying himself after the manner of such men some one stole into his tent and dug up the bags of dust he had buried there. Upon discovery of the theft there was a great hue and cry raised, a sheriff's posse was called in and a young fellow from the east, little better than a tenderfoot, was arrested for the crime. He didn't look guilty or act guilty and there was a good deal of sympathy for him among the boys. Otherwise the regular formula of justice might not have been observed.

"When the trial came on, the young man had a lawyer that he had sent for and who made it interesting for the prosecutor, who relied largely upon lung power and sledgehammer blows. Inside of two hours it was proved by evidence that could not be questioned that the accused had spent the entire night with a friend at his shanty three miles from camp. Outside of what the friend swore to a number had seen the prisoner going out in the evening and returning in the morning. Even the prosecution was gracious enough to admit at last that a perfect alibi had been proved.

"'That's no mistake about it,' roared the court in order to emphasize his indignation, 'it has been proved that this sneakin, slick tongued hypercrit has committed a alerbi. I sentence him to six months' hard labor.'

"And it took half a day to get the sentence annulled." — Detroit Free Press.

A Legal Curiosity.

The following is said to be an exact copy of an amended return of nulla bona recently filed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court of Dade county, Fla. It has thus become an actual court paper and may be seen by any one who wishes to examine the public records. The sheriff is said to have called to his assistance a young Georgian, now locally known as "the Everglades poet:"

Return, in this case, I had thought was well ended,
But I am advised it is better amended,
So now a return that will speak the whole truth
Is offered in lieu of the other, forsooth.
This darned execution! I've tried for to levy
Against the defendant, who calls himself Aiken.
I've gone for him good and come down on him heavy,
But find he's no goods that can ever be taken.
The other defendant has acted much "Wilder."
Suspicions I have, if I put it some milder,
For though he had lands and many a chattel,
And fought to the finish an oft losing battle,
This Abner M. Wilder, the other defendant,
Upon his lawyer's deep shrewdness dependent,
Transferred his estate all away.
So I find that in making my levy today
He, too, has no goods I can take,
For all are exempt, or a d— d empty fake,
In the name of triumphant and complaisant spouse,
And execution's returned with, "Nix-coom-er-ouse."
This history I file of sorrowful deficit,
And hope this return is sufficiently explicit.

HIS FEARFUL FINISH.

He had loved with perspicuity and dexterous ambiguity that only comes through practice in the art,
And with growing perspicacity he urged on his capacity to swiftly conquer every female heart.

He could scale by calculation all the heights of osculation in the shortest time between two given points,
And with skill quite scientific he grew wonderfully prolific in amalgamating matrimonial joints.

With the heiresses of Java he was thicker far than lava, and the buds of Madagascar were his prey,
While the girls of Australasia all grew crazier and crazier as he led them on to love him day by day

He achieved with great facility and marvelous ability the conquest of a harem in a week,
And he struck the bright eyed furies of the blue begirt Canaries so dumb with love that none of them could speak

In the far antarctic regions he was worshiped by whole legions, and the debutantes of China clung to him
Way up north, all frozen solid, where the Eskimos are stolid, there he warmed each maiden's heart up to the brim.

But upon one fatal morning, all his other conquests scorning, to old Narragansett Pier he took his flight,
And when the girls there found him they just wrapped their arms around him, and they kissed him and they loved him out of sight.

A Brainy Boy.

A small boy cyclist was riding without a light and was stopped by a park officer, who asked him in gruff tones where his light was.

"Why, it's here," exclaimed the rider in surprise.

"Yes, but it's out," solemnly asserted the patrolman.

"Well, it was lighted at that last turn."

"Sonny, it's cold; couldn't have been lighted this evening," triumphantly announced the officer.

"Huh! That thin metal cools in a minute. I'll light that lamp and wait until it gets redhot, put it out, then ride to the next corner and back, and when I return it'll be cold."

"All right. Try it," assented the acute policeman.

The boy lighted the lantern, waited until it grew redhot, turned it out and started, and that kid is going yet.—Philadelphia Press.

A DISASTER AVERTED.

The Captain Was Alert and Saved the Great Battleship.

The brand new battleship Demolisher had been thrown open to visitors. Her captain stood at the gangway receiving his guests, pride and delight in his magnificent vessel shining in every lineament. Suddenly his gaze concentrated upon an approaching figure. His face grew pale to the lips, he shook in every fiber. Controlling his terror by a mighty effort, he turned hastily to his executive officer

"Clear for action, Mr. Bloodlet," he cried. "Beat to quarters. Load with grape. Order the marines to concentrate behind me here, prepared to repel boarders."

"Aye, aye, sir," responded the officer promptly, although thoroughly bewildered.

The blood returned to the captain's face, and he regained his composure as he marked how quickly his orders were carried out and how they were prepared to meet their formidable foe successfully. Then his eyes again sought the object of his fears. He was close aboard.

"Hello, cap'n!" he cried, a vacuous smile playing about his weak mouth.

"Back!" shouted the captain sternly. "Back, or I'll blow you up!"

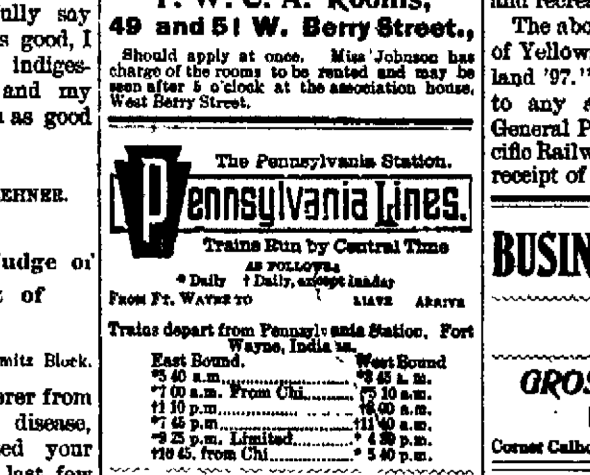

"Say, cap'n, that's what you seem to be doin," responded the enemy, giggling.

"Don't you try to set foot on board my ship," continued the captain vehemently. "I'm not going to jeopardize boat and crew for your pleasure."

"Oh, say, cap'n," remonstrated the enemy, with a silly grin, "don't you know me?"

"You bet I do," replied the captain fervently. "You're the idiot that rocks the boat, and you shall not come on board mine."—Alex Ricketts in New York Truth.

Still Failed to See It.

"I'd like to see a man kiss me!" she said with considerable spirit.

"Well," he replied thoughtfully, "as a spectacle I think you would find it disappointing. The value of a kiss does not lie in the looks of it, you know. However, if you feel that way about it I would suggest that you stand over here and look in the mirror. There, that's just it."

"You horrid thing!" she exclaimed just about half a minute later.

Afterward she confessed to her dearest friend that she was so preoccupied that even then she did not see any one kiss her, but she was pretty well convinced in her own mind that some one did.—Chicago Post.

A Hay Fever Victim Made Happy.

The Hirons Medicine Co Fort Wayne, Ind.

GENTLEMEN:—I have been afflicted with Hay-Fever in its most malignant form for years. The first attack would appear in June. During August and September my sufferings were intense. Water would run from my eyes and nose, the paroxysm of sneezing were uncontrollable, and I had terrible burning pains in my head I learned of your Double Treatment for Catarrh and Hay-Fever and procured it at once. After having used three bottles of the remedies I was entirely cured. I heartily endorse your valuable medicine, and advise all Hay-Fever sufferers to give it a trial. (Signed.)

ANDREW LULEY, 279 Hanna St. Fort Wayne, Ind.

CATARRH.

What the Resident Manager of the Chicago Newspaper Union has to Say

The Hirons Medicine Company, Fort Wayne, Ind.

GENTLEMEN:—Your Mr. A. R. Hirons persuaded me to give your Double Treatment for catarrh a trial, and after having used it about 30 days, I can honestly say that the results have been very satisfactory. I have been a sufferer from the disease since childhood, and was so bad at times that the membrane would bleed constantly. By the use of your medicine I have stopped the bleeding, my head is greatly relieved, and I have no more difficulty with my breathing. Yours truly

CHARLES D. TILLO.

A Word From Charles Yagerlehner, the Electrician.

DEAR SIRS—I have had a bad case of catarrh for 14 years. There was a constant dripping of mucous into my throat. Every morning my nose, head and throat would be filled up. After a terrible siege of trying to remove the mucous I would become so sick that it was with difficulty that I could eat my breakfast. I had no appetite. The disease developed into bronchitis and dyspepsia. I read of your Double Treatment for Catarrh, and after having used your remedies for a short time, I can cheerfully say that now my appetite is good, I have no more trouble with indigestion, my throat is well, and my general health has not been as good for years.

[Signed]

CHARLES YAGERLEHNER.

I have taken four bottles of the remedy. I have no more soreness in my lungs and the hemorrhages have ceased. I cannot say enough in the praise of your medicine.

Had Asthma for Twenty Years.

The Hirons Medical Company, Room 3 Schmitz Block, Fort Wayne, Ind.:

Dear Sirs:—I had Ashtma for twenty years. I treated with physicians in St. Louis and in other cities, and have used many remedies, but never received any relief whatever until I commenced the use of your New Asthma and Cough Cure. Before I had used one bottle I received great relief, and after having used four bottles I am entirely cured. I am happy to recommend your remedy to all who are suffering from Asthma. May the Lord bless you and your wonderful medicine.

At the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone.

"Where the road turns to the left at Grand View, walk out over the salient of rock at the angle itself, sit down on the farthest chimney shaft, over rocks naturally white, but now blackened by weathering. If possible, go there in the morning or in the latter part of the afternoon. At noontime the light is too strong, and the details of the canyon are smothered, and the individuality of the walls killed. But with a soft morning or afternoon light every detail of one or the other of the walls leaps out from the general mass as if instinct with life. And what a wonderful sea it is that lies beneath and beyond us. A painted sea, not of water but of rock. And such painting! Try to distinguish the decided colors and their infinite variations The most wonderful part of it is the rare blending, where one fades into another, and yet thou canst detect neither the beginning nor the ending."

The above is taken from "Wonderland 97," a new tourist book that tells all about Yellowstone Park.

"A climb up Electric Peak; a ride over Mount Everts; a trip to Yancey's; paddling about Yellowstone Lake; camping out down at Two Ocean Pass; a ride into the Hoodoo country; an excursion down the Madison to Riverside—all these can be made from some one of the hotels as a rendezvous, and take my word for it you will be surprised at the results.

"Make up a party of congenial spirits for vacation time in 1897 and go out to Yellowstone Park and see how much of its 3,344 square miles can be seen before you return. Spend the heated summer season at hotels where the temperature and altitude will allow genuine comfort and recreation."

A picturesque summer girl looks especially from the first page of August Fashions, her dainty wrap and hat giving a hint of the early fall styles, with their combinations of silk, chiffon, feathers and flowers. The fashion plates are numerous and elegant, showing gowns, wraps and millinery for all occasions, not only for the older members of the family, but the tiny tots as well. Especially beautiful is an elaborate garden party gown from Redfern, while less complicated costumes abound for the benefit of the home dressmaker. The Paris letter and other fashion articles give the latest information regarding colors, fabrics and caprices of the moment.

The full page art picture, a feature highly prized by subscribers who wish to make a collection of copies of noted paintings, is this month by the artist Lake Fildes, R. A., and represents "An August Day in Venice."

Every reader of Fashions who is musically inclined will be delighted to find the "Cuckoo Polka," a bright and catchy composition, written especially for Fashions by Harry Zickel, the author of the famous "Black America March," of which 900,000 copies were sold in one year. Combining brilliancy of effect with ease of execution, it is sure to make a hit. In length it is equal to the six pieces sold at the music stores.

THE BATTLE WAGES.

Strikers Still After the DeArmitt Miners.

Delegations With Brass Bands Arriving Hourly—President Dolan Arrested.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 2.—The battle of the striking miners, to induce De Armitt's men to come out, waged last night and in the early morning, with apparently no further gains over last week. The marchers at 5 a. m. in the vicinity of the Turtle Creek mine numbered 1,800. This is by actual count of a body of 1,070 men and a careful estimate of smaller bodies of men. If reports received by the leaders are true, and there is no reason to doubt them, there will be 3,500 men on the ground by 2 p. m. to try to shame DeArmitt's men to come out. Other bodies of men are arriving every few minutes with brass bands and enthusiasm. This means a long fight if the leaders are able to continue the good order among the men. So far during the marching not a striker has shown any sign of the use of liquor.

While the ranks of the strikers at Turtle Creek were being augmented, parties of marchers were in the field to induce the miners not to go to work. About 300 gathered before the Turtle Creek mines before the men started to work. A line was opened up, and as the diggers neared the pit mouth, they passed between the lines of the strikers. There was no attempt at force, but a number of the diggers stopped and talked with the strikers, and then passed on into the mine. Some were induced to come out. About an hour later the strikers moved off in the direction of the McCrea school house. Plum Creek mine was visited by them. At the Oak Hill mine a demonstration was made, but no men were induced to quit.

How many men are in the mine is not known. The strikers say only eight, but it is known that fifteen men went in. At the Sandy Creek mine many went out. The company says 170 are at work, while strikers say only twenty-two went in.

At 9:15 o'clock the marchers left Turtle Creek about 2,000 strong and started for the mass meeting at the McCrea school house. The procession was headed by four brass bands. The meeting is scheduled for 11 o'clock.

President Dolan, who was arrested early this morning on a charge of riot and unlawful assemblage, gave bail for a hearing on Wednesday and again joined the strikers.

Speaking of his arrest, Mr. Dolan commented bitterly on the action of Superintendent DeArmitt. He accused the operators of trying to incite riot by causing an arrest at such a time and place. He claims he was not disturbing anyone and that his arrest was made without cause. He thinks the arrest, however, will help the cause of the strike.

MARCHING TO TURTLE CREEK.

PITTSBURG, Pa., August 2.—Three hundred strikers from the Beech Cliff mines, on the Pan Handle railroad, marched through the city at 2 o'clock this morning. They were bound for Camp Determination, at Turtle Creek. The men were mostly foreigners and carried canes and clubs. About an hour after the Beech Cliff men marched through, another deputy regiment, entered the city from the west and marched silently toward the DeArmitt mines. They were the Imperial miners, 400 strong, headed by a brass band. The first delegation also had a band. The march was without more of any kind, until the Oakland power house was passed, when the band started up a lively march. It is stated that all the miners of the Montour Run railway will be at the meeting this morning. None of these delegations had been counted upon by the strikers' officials when listing the expected recruits from all over this end of the district.

Four hundred men from the third Monongahela pool miners passed through McKeesport at 3:30 this morning for Turtle Creek. They were headed by two bands and the American flag. The procession was an orderly one.

The detachment sent to Plum Creek mines this morning found that DeArmitt had stolen another march on them. It was the intention to hold a meeting at the Bethlehem school house and to invite the Plum Creek miners there to attend. When the marchers reached the place they found that a fence had been erected around the school property, and notices posted that no trespassing would be allowed. This move engendered considerable ill feeling, as the school house grounds were the only public place in the vicinity of the mines where a meeting could be held. The leaders of the marchers said they would not disobey the notices, and the men marched back to McCrea's school house.

Speeches were also made in the Italian and Hungarian languages by interpreters. Between 2,000 and 3,000 miners were present. The greatest enthusiasm was manifested, but there was no disorder. The speakers all cautioned the strikers against breaking the law.

President Dolan, who arrived later, said that out of 1,000 miners employed in the three mines, but sixty were at work. Secretary Warner was in the city this morning, and sent out two wagon loads of provisions to camp. He said that he will be too busy with the commissary department to go into court today to make application for an injunction restraining Sheriff Lowry from interfering with the marchers, but that he would place the matter before Judge Shafer as soon as he had time. None of the district officials were present when the big meeting at McCrea's school house was called to order. Speeches were made by M. P. Carrick, M. J. Connahan, Wm. Carney, and Mrs. T. J. Jones, of Chicago.

JOINING THE STRIKERS.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Aug. 2.—Some fine additions are being made to the number of strikers in the Fairmont district under the efforts of Joseph W. Rea and one assistant. Eleven hundred and thirty men are now with the strikers, while nearly three times that number are still at work. It is thought that this will not be the case a week hence. Rea's work among the miners is proving very successful. The secret of the general strike, however, should there be one, is that the operators are getting no contracts of over ten days duration. The men say this is no permanent benefit for them so they will join the strikers.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS DUE.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 2.—There were about fifty miners at work in the mines around Clarksburg today out of about 500. There will be further developments after 3 o'clock this afternoon, when it is expected that all the miners will lay down their picks.

RIVER FIGHT.

WASHINGTON, Ind., Aug. 2.—This morning the miners started to work at Cabel & Co.'s mine. They were met by strikers, who requested them not to return to work. The debate ended in a free fight, in which clubs and fists played a part. Gibson Lett, one of the men who attempted to go to work, was badly used up, his scalp split open.

GLASS BLOWERS

Being Displaced by Machines in the Fruit Jar Trade.

A Muncie Firm Serves Notice of Dismissal Upon 200 of Its Men.

MUNCIE, Ind., Aug. 2.—Ball Bros., among the largest fruit jar manufacturers in the world, are preparing to introduce machines for making fruit jars, and have sent notice to some of their employes that their services will not be needed after this month. The blowers say that 200 have received these notices. The firm reports that not all the men blowers will be replaced at once, but that the machines will gradually be introduced. They claim that the machines will do better work than the men, and at one half the cost. It is expected that glass jars will be brought into competition with tin ware, and that the demand will be largely increased owing to the cheapness.

COL. HURD ASPIRES

To Fill the Shoes Now Worn by Patrick Ryan.

Was Custodian of the Postoffice Once and Would Like to be Again—Needs a Position in Washington.

Col. O. D. Hurd wants to be custodian of the postoffice and would like to see Patrick Ryan removed because he is a democrat, but the colonel is likely to be disappointed, because Mr. Ryan's job comes under the head of civil service and it is no easy matter to oust him. It is going to be hard for a conscientious man like Postmaster Page to find any charge against the present incumbent, as he has been a careful and painstaking employe. Colonel Hurd has sent a petition with numerous signatures on to Washington, asking for the place, but he will find that the much coveted plum cannot be plucked so easily.

FEUD SETTLED

By Both Men Being Mortally Wounded.

Charles Fox and William Mackey Are the Participants—Both Are Tough Citizens.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 2.—Stringtown, an oil town near Sistersville, W. Va., was the scene of a sensational shooting affray in which two men received probably mortal wounds. The shooting was the result of a feud between Charles Fox, a resident of Stringtown, and William Mackey, a colored gambler. Fox, who was intoxicated, entered a gambling room last evening, and upon seeing Mackey, at once commenced to shoot. Mackey was unarmed, but got a hatchet and closed in with his assailant and inflicted some serious wounds. Fox broke away and loaded his gun the second time and commenced shooting, and by this time some one had handed Mackey a gun and a general fusilade followed. Fox received only one bullet, but it struck him over the heart, inflicting a fatal wound. Mackey was shot once in the groin and another bullet shattered his left arm. He is in a precarious condition and may not recover.

LOST THE CASE.

The Famous Land Question Decided.

Champaign County Loses a Fight in Which Immense Tracts of Land Were Involved.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Commissioner Hermann, of the general land office has decided adversely to the claim of Champaign county, Illinois, as grantee of the state in the claim of Illinois for indemnification or repayment of purchase money received by the government from the sale of certain lands between 1850-57 and claimed by the state to have inured to it as swamp land. This is a long-standing controversy between the federal and state governments and three different examinations have been made in the field by various special agents and in different years payments have been made of other lands likewise involved. The original selection claimed as a basis for indemnity aggregated 160,586 acres. The decision is a lengthy recapitulation of the evidence and the law, as this is a test case involving 100 other similar claims pending here. Commissioner Herman decides the lands not to have been swamp lands within the meaning of the grant.

ACCEPTED A REDUCTION.

Puddlers Have Agreed to the Terms of the Manufacturers.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 2.—It was daylight yesterday before the iron manufacturers and puddlers of the amalgamated conference agreed on a scale for puddling. There were twenty five puddlers on the amalgamated committee of one hundred, and the puddlers had the say about accepting or rejecting the proposition directly affecting them. The puddlers made several attempts to effect a compromise and obtain $4.25 a ton for puddling, but the manufacturers positively refused to recede from their demand for a reduction from $4.50 to $4. When the puddlers held their last secret meeting to consider the matter the vote stood 13 to 12 in favor of taking the reduction, and thus this portion of the difficulty was at an end. The new scale is as follows: "Four dollars a ton on 1 cent card rate; $4 25 on 1 1-10 card rate; $4 75 on 1 3-10 rate; $5 on 1 4-10 rate, and $5 25 on 1½ rate, a 1 cent card rate meaning when bar iron is selling 1 cent a pound, etc. It is all journeymen was taken at 7 o'clock this morning until 10 o'clock Monday morning, when it is expected the finishers' scale will be adjusted and the whole trouble brought to an end.

WHITES MASSACRED.

Australians Go to New Guinea After Gold.

Natives Put Them to Death With Tomahawks—The Governor Will Punish the Murderers.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 2.—The steamer Miowera from Sydney brings information that news of still another massacre has been received at Sydney. Not long ago great numbers of Australia's huge army of unemployed were attracted by stories of fabulous gold panning at Fiqua and other interior points in New Guinea. Their ranks have been terribly thinned by murder, starvation and fatal swamp fevers. To make matters worse every native who helped a white man was marked for the tomahawk.

The remnant of those who went there met with misfortune and ruin. The stores gave out and for months they lived on "damper" and bananas. The natives in the vicinity claimed to be ill treated by the government in the way of want stores and needed to teach the government a lesson by massacreing all the whites within reach. The whites were raided at night and put to death with tomahawks, being easy victims. After long suffering they were sick and emaciated and could not defend themselves. Many massacres had occurred in the same place previously, but the governor has never attempted to punish the murderers. Later news confirms the massacre which occurred eighty five miles from Port Moresby. The entire settlement of natives and whites had their heads split open by a large band of savages. The government has sent a large body of military police to surround the natives and shoot if necessary. Wholesale arrests will be made. The natives will be brought back manacled in the hold of a steamer chartered for the purpose.

THE UNION JACK

Floats Over the Solomon Group of Islands.

The British Is Willing to Protect All the Islands of the World—Will be Unanswerable.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 2.—The steamer Miowera, which arrived from Sydney, brought details of the recent annexation of the Solomon group. The work was done by her British majesty's ship Wallaroo. The first island made a colony was Bellona, which the Wallaroo reached on July 15. The union jack was hoisted with the usual ceremonies. The natives were very shy at first and much frightened by the salute, but they became reassured on the ship leaving and removed the notice of the board of annexation and dug up the bottle containing the proclamation. The cateuto cordiale was first established by the ship rescuing a native blown out to sea in a canoe.

Rannell island was also placed under British protection the same day. The island is difficult of access and no natives were seen. The Wallaroo called at Maru sound and proceeded to Stewart islands, annexing them. The natives are of a high type and very friendly. They were much pleased at becoming British subjects.

Rennell and Bellona lie to the southward of Guadalcanar, in the Solomon group, and were apparently discovered by Captain Wilkinson, in the Indispensible, in 1790. It is said copper ore is abundant on them. According to Lieutenant Richards, Rannell is about forty-five miles long and six or seven miles wide, of a uniform height of 400 feet, densely wooded, but apparently affords no safe anchorage. The natives resemble those in Tanna, in the New Hebrides. All the islands are rich in cocoanuts.

LAKE OF OIL.

An Analysis Shows It is of Marvelous Richness.

Company Has Been Formed to Put It on the Market—Will Rich in Coal and Asphalt.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—While the whole world is excited over the gold discovery in the north, right here has been lost of another discovery that promises to be of great value in the development of the Yukon. Some months ago a lake of almost pure petroleum was discovered and samples were sent to Seattle for analysis. The report of these has just been made public and the find is reported to be of most marvelous richness. A company has been formed in Seattle to handle the product and travellers from there say the company intends to put it on the Alaskan market at once. The lake is of unknown depth, several miles wide and five to six miles in length, and the quality of the petroleum is said to be of the finest. The lake is only two miles from the coast. The hills surrounding are said to be rich in coal and asphalt. It is the expectation of the owners of the lake to take its products into the mining camps of northern Alaska whenever the water ways will permit.

NEW STEAMSHIPS

To be Used in the Alaskan Trade on the Yukon.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 2.—The Northern Transportation and Trading company has let a contract to Moran Bros., of Seattle, for the immediate construction of three new river steamers to ply on the Yukon river from St. Michael to Dawson City, and from there to be used in the vicinity of St. Michael. The same company acknowledged that it would bring three steamships around the Horn from the Atlantic coast this winter to Seattle and use them on the run to St. Michael. The steamships will be large and fine, but the company has not decided whether it will build or purchase some already built.

Boston Liberal Head of Brown University.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 2.—The resignation of President Andrews, of Brown university, was considered by 1500 legals at yesterday's meeting of the Central Labor union. It was deplored and the policy of the officers in restricting him for his economic views was condemned in resolutions. The resolutions speak of the intolerance and illiberality of the trustees, and declare that the action of the officers of the Brown university is a most ominous sign of the growth of the plutocratic spirit in our colleges.

ARION KILLED.

The Daring Aerial Performer Hurled to His Death.

While Going Through His Bicycle Act on a Live Wire He Meets With the Accident—Remains Brought Here.

To the hundreds of people who remember the marvellous performances of "Arion," the aerial wonder, whose exhibitions were the closing feature of Robison park last summer, will be shocked to know that the noted actor met a terrible death while engaged in one of his acts at Brooklyn last night. His remains will be brought to this city tonight and conveyed to the home of the grief-stricken widow, at No. 218 South Harrison street.

In the presence of ten thousand people "Arion," whose right name is Donald McDowell, started to do his bicycle act on a high live wire decorated with many variColored incandescent lights, he was riding on a live trolley wire, seventy-five feet above the ground, when he lost one of his pedals, and with a cry of terror fell to the ground. He was almost instantly killed.

The Brooklyn Heights Railroad company for several weeks had been advertising McDowell, who is known as Professor Arion, as the greatest living aerial cyclist. His thrilling feat of riding his bicycle across a live trolley wire high in midair was billed to take place for the first time in the east at Ridgewood park last night. This and the annual saengerfest of the Hesse Volks Verein, of this city, which began yesterday, attracted a great crowd to the park.

A wire was stretched seventy-five feet in the air between two poles a hundred feet apart in Ridgewood park. This wire was connected with a trolley wire and carried a full voltage when the cyclist walked confidently to one of the poles.

The tree had been adorned from his wheel, which was covered with incandescent lights, as were his clothes. Attendants placed McDowell in a sling at 9:30 o'clock, and then as the excited crowd cheered wildly, he and his bicycle were hoisted to the platform around the top of the pole.

After bowing and smiling at the broad expanse of upturned faces, McDowell mounted his wheel and dropped the small wire he held in his hand between the rear wheels. Instantly the incandescent lights became illuminated and the spectators sent up a great cheer.

Prof. Arion, known as the "Hero of Niagara Falls," because of his daring feats performed on the slack wire over the seething waters, was about to perform the greatest act ever seen in Brooklyn. The cheering ended, the spectators held their breath in nervous terror as the man far above their heads started on his perilous ride. McDowell rode from the platform and started on his journey. He had ridden about twenty feet when his foot in some way lost one of its pedals. In the effort to regain it he lost his balance. He made a frantic effort for a moment to regain his upright position, and then, as all gazed at him in horror, the man and wheel fell together to the ground. Both the man and the bicycle struck the earth. McDowell was hurled into the air by the rebound and then fell unconscious.

Before he struck a thousand terrified screams went up from the crowd, and a moment later there was a panic. Men rushed about like insane persons and many women fainted from fright.

The body had not been on the ground more than a minute when Dr. Charles J. Bettscheimer, a member of the Hesse Volks Verein, worked his way through the panic stricken crowd and raised the man. McDowell was dying, and died a moment later in the physician's arms.

There is no doubt that Arion was one of the finest wire performers that ever exhibited in this country. When the Robison park management hired him last October they found him to be the best drawing card of the season. During his stay here he became acquainted with Miss Bessie Stine, daughter of the late Daniel Stine, and their friendship ripened into courtship and marriage. Since then Arion has considered Fort Wayne his home, but he made frequent trips away to fill engagements. He went to Brooklyn about three weeks ago, leaving his wife here. Louis Heilbroner, who was a personal friend of Arion's, says that he possessed an agreeable personality and was a genial fellow. He was twenty-eight years old, well built and good looking, and always appeared to be indifferent to his act. His career has been interesting and sensational. He formerly resided at Toronto, Canada, where relatives survive him. The funeral will be announced later.

The confectionery owned by George Barrows at Wabash was entered by a thief a few days ago and robbed of a considerable amount of money. The thief, a young boy, was captured.

Misses Mamie and Loretta Dittoe are visiting friends in Detroit.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Oppenheimer Celebrate.

The First Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary Ever Celebrated in Jewish Circles in Fort Wayne.

Yesterday was witnessed one of the most notable golden weddings that has occurred in this city for many years, the central figures being the venerable Abraham Oppenheimer and his estimable wife. It was the first Jewish golden wedding ever celebrated in Fort Wayne, on which account much importance and was attached to it in Hebrew circles. A happy coincidence of the affair was the fact that upon the same day Mr. Oppenheimer was seventy-nine years old, making it a double anniversary to celebrate.

Mr. Oppenheimer came to this city in May, 1846, and started in business with a peddler's pack. He was industrious and also prosperous, for four years later he was able to establish himself in business with the late Seagmund Redelsheimer in the general store trade, on the site now occupied by Pfeiffer & Schlatter, the hardware merchants, on Columbia street. A few years later he formed a partnership with F. Nirdlinger, which partnership was continued until 1865, when he engaged in the produce business, being a member of the firm of Becker, Oppenheimer & Co. That partnership was continued until 1878 when the firm was dissolved. He continued in the same line of business for a short time, then he retired, and has since then lived at the ease which his many years of activity earned for him. He bought and moved into the residence he now occupies in 1864, and has lived there ever since. He was married in 1847 to Miss Emma Epstein, and now receiving in the old frame house now occupied as a fish market, standing on the corner of Harmony Court and West Main street. The building at that time was located where the Hamilton bank now stands, and during was in which was the undertaking establishment of the venerable Louis Peltier. The court house square was a marsh and the court house was a series of buildings, one of the county offices being located in each one of them.

Mr. Oppenheimer was one of the founders of the Hebrew congregation in this city, was one of the first trustees and has been an officer continuously ever since, now being its vice president. He is also a charter member of B'nai B'rith society, which was founded about 1865. Yesterday was certainly a happy and a proud occasion for the aged wife and his. The living children of this couple are: Fred Oppenheimer, of this city, aged 50; Mrs. Henry Steiner, of Toledo, aged 48; Rudolph Oppenheimer, of Galveston, aged 46; Mrs. Joseph Wiler, of Logansport, aged 44; Mrs. Herman Nathan, of Chicago, aged 41, and Mrs. A. Gutmacher, of Baltimore, aged 35; all of whom with the exception of Rudolph, were their guests yesterday.

There are ten grandchildren, and Lawrence Henry Long, who was the first one to call yesterday, was the guest of honor, he being the only great grandchild. The trustees of the congregation have handsomely remembered the aged couple, their testimonial being in the shape of two handsome leather covered chairs, while the Hebrew Ladies' Benevolent society sent a golden wreath and palm as a remembrance. Other presents were also received.

A PRETTY BAD MIX UP.

It Was Thrillingly Realistic, but It Seems It Wasn't Art.

The old property man seated himself on a moss covered "practical" stump while waiting for the play to begin, and, in response to my question, said:

"Mistakes will occur and things will get mixed up in the theatrical business as well as in any other. I remember one season when I was with 'The Country Farm;' everything real, you know; real cows, horses, chickens and all that sort of stuff. One act was in the city, and there were real fire engines, cable cars, ferryboats, policemen, and such like; good play and took in money by the barrelful, but hard work for me; had to buy fresh vegetables for the cows to eat in full view of the audience and look after a raft of other things.

"One night out at Zanesville, O., just as the curtain went up the bay mule, who appeared in the first tableau, kicked the brass cannon used in the Fourth of July scene. He was a powerful kicker, having been practicing on me for about three months, and the heat generated by the striking of his shoe against the cannon set off the charge, and it blazed away right among the real cows and other animals. The whole caboodle of 'em stampeded straight on to the stage. The real chickens also flew on, and the fire engine horses likewise naturally charged in, the racket being right in their line. The stage hands and most of the actors rushed on to try to straighten out the tangle.

"About this time a water pipe burst, and something set off the thunder machine, and it began to thunder worse than I had ever heard it before in a long and eventful life. This jarred the snow department, and the paper flakes began to flutter down pretty lively, while a box of red fire in the wings caught from the smoldering cannon wadding and cast a lurid and fitful glare o'er the general cataclysm, as I may call it. The real Durham bull tossed the heavy villain on his horns, and the real old Southdown ram butted the comic man across the footlights and back into the neighborhood of the fifth row, landing him in the lap of his honor the mayor. It was a scene long to be remembered, with the chickens flying up into the proscenium boxes and cackling like mad, and the orchestra trying to play the whole thing down with a redhot selection from Wagner. But we got it all straightened out at last."

"But what about the audience?" inquired an innocent listener. "Wasn't there a panic?"

"Not a bit of it. That's the funny part of the whole thing. They were a very intelligent audience, right up to date on the realistic drama, and they thought it was the first act. Never heard such applause in my life. The manager wanted to repeat the thing every night in place of the opening scene, but the author wouldn't listen to it. He said it wasn't art."—Harper's Magazine.

THE QUEEN'S PLAISANCE.

Greenwich House the Favorite Residence of the Great Elizabeth.

John Bennett's serial in St. Nicholas, "Master Skylark," is a story of the time of Shakespeare and contains many quaint pictures of old English life. The hero and his fellow scholars of St. Paul's are commanded to sing before the queen, and there is the following account of their reception:

A smoking dinner was waiting them of whitebait with red pepper and a yellow juice so sour that Nick's mouth drew up in a knot, but it was very good. There were besides silver dishes full of sugared red currants and heaps of comfits and sweetmeats, which Master Gyles would not allow them even to touch, and saffron cakes with raisins in them and spiced hot cordial out of tiny silver cups. Bareheaded pages clad in silk and silver lace waited upon them as if they were fledgeling kings, but the boys were too hungry to care for that or to try to put on airs and waded into the meat and drink as if they had been starved for a fortnight.

But when they were done Nick saw that the table off which they had eaten was inlaid with pearl and silver filigree and that the tablecloth was of silk, with woven metal work and gems set in it worth more than 1,000 crowns. He was very glad he had eaten first, for such wonderful service would have taken away his appetite.

And truly a wonderful palace was the Queen's Plaisance, as Greenwich House was called. Elizabeth was born in it, and so loved it most of all. There she pleased oftenest to receive and grant audiences to envoys from foreign courts, and there, on that account, as was always her proud, jealous way, she made a blinding show of glory and of wealth, of science, art and power that England, to the eyes which saw her there, might stand in second place to no dominion in the world, however rich or great.

It was a very house of gold.

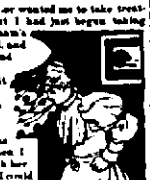

Over the door where the lads marched in was the queen's device, a golden rose, with a motto set below in letters of gold, "Dieu et mon droit," and upon the walls were blazoned coats of noble arms on branching golden trees, of pure gold and finest silk, costly beyond compare. The royal presence chamber shone with tapestries of gold, of silver and of oriental silks of as many shifting colors as the birds of paradise and wrought in exquisite design. The throne was set with diamonds, with rubies, garnets and sapphires, glittering like a pastry crust of stars and garnished with gold lace work, pearls and ornament, and under the velvet canopy which hung above the throne was embroidered in seed pearls, "Vivat Regina Elizabetha!" There was no door without a gorgeous usher there, no room without a page, no corridor without a guard, no post without a man of noble birth to fill it.

On the walls of the great gallery were masterly paintings of great

MRS. PETERSON'S STORY.

I have suffered with womb trouble over fifteen years. I had inflammation, enlargement and displacement of the womb.

The doctor wanted me to take treatments, but I had just begun taking Mrs. Pinkham's Compound, and my husband said I had better wait and see how much good that would do me. I was so sick when I began with her medicine I could hardly be on my feet. I had the backache constantly, also headache and was so dizzy. I had heart trouble, it seemed as though my heart was in my throat at times choking me. I could not walk around and I could not lie down, for then my heart would beat so fast I would feel as though I was smothering. I had to sit up in bed nights in order to breathe. I was so weak I could not do anything.

I have now taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and used three packages of Sanative Wash, and can say I am perfectly cured. I do not think I could have lived long if Mrs. Pinkham's medicine had not helped me.—MRS. JOSEPH PETERSON, 513 East St., Warren, Pa.

folk, glories showing all the stars fast in the sky and drawings of the world and all its parts, so real that one could see the savages in the new world hanging to the underside by their feet, like flies upon the ceiling. How they stuck was more than Nick could make out, and where they landed it they chanced to slip and fall troubled him a deal, until in the sheer multiplication of wonders he could not wonder any more.

SHOOTING A RHINOCEROS.

Two of Them Charged a Hunter In an African Forest.

Mr. H. W. Seton-Karr, in The Century, describes his experiences in "After Big Game In Africa and India." Shortly after bagging his first elephant the author started after the two horned rhinoceros. He gives the following account of his experience:

As I came round a bush I saw at the bottom of a kind of natural alley in the forest, framed in like a picture by the trees, a massive old female rhinoceros. She was facing me and standing half in sunshine, half in shadow. From a bush protruded the hind quarters of another. Signing to the Somalis to keep back, I instantly sat down and "drew a bead" upon her chest. The distance was about 70 yards, and, although the wind was adverse to her and we had made no noise, she must have seen us like moving shadows among the trees and was evidently full of suspicion and distrust.

If I ever took careful aim, it was at that moment, and under cover of the smoke I shifted my position as the rhinoceros came charging down upon us, giving three or four sharp whiffs like jets of steam, evidently with the intention of clearing the enemy away from the rear before making her escape toward the front against the wind. Having, as she supposed, effected this maneuver—a very usual one on the part of the rhinoceros—she veered off, and the two broke away across the forest, crash after crash dying away in the distance, marking their course as they receded. On perceiving the rhinoceros go off apparently uninjured, my Somalis gave full vent to their disappointment, making extravagant gestures and using what sounded like bad language, yet still in half whispers, as they knew instinctively that the animals might not have gone far, after all, especially if the one I had fired at had really received a mortal wound.

The tracks we now followed were deep holes and furrows imprinted by the animals at full speed. We had not gone far before I again saw the larger of the two rhinoceroses standing broadside on and quite motionless under a bush which concealed the head. Giving my three Somalis to understand that they must remain quiet, I aimed once more at the animal's shoulder, taking care that no twig or branch was in the line of fire, knowing how easily a bullet may become deflected. My shot was followed by a couple of short, angry snorts, the stamp of heavy feet and an appalling crashing, which advanced and then swept round toward the left. Another cautious advance on our part, and not far off I saw, near the center of an open space, the smaller of the two rhinoceroses, but not the larger one.

A shot delivered standing, from the shoulder, was followed by two shrill squeaks as the animal tottered a few paces and fell over on its side—a sound most disproportionate to the size and bulk of so large a creature, but which I instantly recognized, from Sir Samuel Baker's description, as the death cry of the rhinoceros, and the hearing of it filled me with a hunter's joy. While I was reloading the Somalis had crept forward with their spears, relying upon their own agility in evading any charge delivered by the larger one, which I knew must surely be somewhere near at hand. After peering over a low bush they executed a war dance upon the ground beyond, for there were the two rhinoceroses lying stone dead almost side by side. My Somalis gave way to shouts and exuberant mirth. They were transformed from scowling fiends, scared by the white man's folly, into radiant brown angels, and I allowed them to stroke my face and pat me on the back without a reprimand.

Intelligible Fog Signals.

Among the greatest dangers to navigation is collision caused by fog, which arises principally from the fact that while one ship can hear by signals that another ship is near or approaching neither vessel can determine in what direction the course is moving. To overcome this difficulty a system based on sirens and fog horns has been devised, which, while simple, appears to be effective. Having due regard to the usual direction of vessels over the principal ocean courses, a single sound has been taken to indicate a common course, say easterly, while combinations of two sounds indicate all of the usual points of the compass. Thus a course due west is indicated by a single horn blow, one due east by a siren blow, north and south by combinations, such as two horns and two whistles, and so on.—Exchange.

MEDICINE BAGS.

Amulets Used by the Untutored Savages of the Old World.

Cook, in his first voyage to New Zealand, speaks of little bags of perfume worn by the Maoris round their necks, and it would seem from the observations of Colenso, as given in "The Transactions of the New Zealand Institute," that these little satchels, or medicine bags, contained four perfumes—a sweet scented moss, a fragrant fern, an odoriferous gum and taramea.

The taramea is the amulet, or talisman. It is a gum procured from a rare and very prickly leaved "Spine plant," collected with great difficulty and with many superstitious ceremonies, and is said to be obtainable only by young virgins after many prayers, charms, etc., recited by the priest or medicine man.

The medicine bags of the natives of Africa are not so simple as those of the New Zealanders, perhaps because the purposes for which they are required are more complicated. Of these the cure of disease is the least and the making of rain the most important.

Mr. Holden gives the contents of the rainmaker's medicine bag as "charcoal made of bats, inspissated renal deposit of the mountain coney, which is used medicinally in the shape of pills, as a good antispasmodic; jackals' livers, baboons' and lions' hearts, hairy calculi from the bowels of old cows, serpents' skins and vertebræ and every kind of tuber, root and plant to be found in the country" ("Kaffir Races," page 291). Among the Zulus and Matabele the kings are the chief medicine men, and a description is given of King Lobengula when busily engaged in making medicine on the great feast day of the Matabele in a special hut prepared for the purpose.

The king of Swaziland is also high priest, prophet and rainmaker to his people, and, as Mr. Mather says in his "Golden South Africa:" "In a bag of gemsbok in his own special hut he has treasures—all sorts of odds and ends. A peep into that bag discloses knuckle bones of men and beasts, pieces of dried flesh, bits of hair, roots and stalks of plants, rocks, scraps of broken bottles, together with an old tattered photograph or two. When rain is wanted, Umbandine gets his queer bag out. He calls one or two witch doctors to attend him and then performs some tricks. An ox is sacrificed, after which his majesty declares that it will rain."

In this multitude of charms the idea of medicine as a cure for disease seems to be entirely lost sight of, but probably some of them may be used internally, for roots and stalks of plants usually figure among them, and it may be observed that savages have everywhere discovered the medicinal uses of their native roots and plants and have in many instances imitated Europeans in their virtues. The Kaffirs always carry and use the root of the male fern as an anthelmintic, and there is a certain root known among the Dutch at the Cape as "David's root," eagerly sought by the Hottentots and Bushmen, and dug up by them with much ceremony when the sun is at a particular point in the heavens, the digger using many precautions that his or her shadow may not rest upon it. This root is a powerful tonic and is used by them as such, and from them has been transferred to European medicine chests. These untutored savages know also the value of mints as nerve soothers and employ the leaves of a native mint to bind upon the head in case of headache. We might, indeed, cite instances innumerable in which valuable plants have been introduced into our pharmacopœia from native sources, but will only mention the coca, now so highly prized, which has been in use in Central America and Mexico for who shall say how many centuries.—Chambers' Journal.

QUEEN ELIZABETH.

Christmas Revels Before Her Majesty In Greenwich House.

In St. Nicholas there is an account of Christmas revels before Queen Elizabeth, the description occurring in John Bennett's serial, "Master Skylark." The following is the passage:

The palace corridors were lined with guards. Gentlemen pensioners under arms went flashing to and fro. Now and then through the inner throng some handsome page with wind blown hair and rainbow colored cloak pushed to the great door, calling: "Way, sirs—way for my lord! Way for my lady of Alderstone!" and, one by one, or in little groups, the courtiers, clad in silks and satins, velvets, jewels and lace of gold, came up through the lofty folding doors to their place in the hall.

There, where the usher of the black rod stood, and the gentlemen of the chamber came and went with golden chains about their necks, were bowing and scraping without stint and reverent civility, for men that were wise and noble were passing by, men that were handsome and brave, and ladies sweet as a summer day and as fair to see as spring laughed by their sides and chatted behind their fans or daintily nibbled comfits, lacking anything to say.

The windows were all curtained in, making a nighttime in midday, and from the walls and galleries flaring links and great bouquets of candles threw an eddying flood of yellow light across the stirring scene. From clump to clump of banner staves and burnished arms, spiked above the wainscot, garlands of red berried holly, spruce and mistletoe were twined across the tapestry, till all the room was bound about with a chain of living green.

There were sweet odors floating through the air and hazy threads of fragrant smoke from perfumes burning in rich braziers, and under foot was the crisp, clean rustle of new rushes.

Master Gyles went to and fro, twisting the manuscript of the revel in his hands or pausing kindly to pat some faltering lad upon the back. Nick and Colley were peeping by turns through a hole in the screen at the throng in the audience chamber.

They could see a confusion of fans, jewels and faces and now and again could hear a burst of subdued laughter over the steadily increasing buzz of voices. Then from the gallery above all at once there came a murmur of instruments tuning together. A voice in the corridor was heard calling: "Way here! Way here!" in masterful tones. The tall folding doors at the side of the hall swung wide, and eight dapper pages in white and gold came in with the master of revels. After them came 20 ladies and noblemen clad in white and gold and a guard of gentlemen pensioners with glittering halberds.

There was a sharp rustle. Every head in the audience chamber bowed low. Nick's heart gave a great jump, for the queen was there!

She came with an air that was at once serious and royal, bearing herself haughtily, yet with a certain grace and sprightliness that became her very well. She was quite tall and well made, and her quickly changing face was long and fair, though wrinkled and no longer young. Her complexion was clear and of an olive hue, her nose was a little hooked, her firm lips were thin, and her small black eyes, though keen and bright, were pleasant and merry withal. Her hair was a coppery, tawny red and false, moreover. In her ears hung two great pearls, and there was a fine small crown studded with diamonds upon her head, besides a necklace of exceeding fine gold and jewels about her neck. She was attired in a white silk gown bordered with pearls the size of beans, and over it wore a mantle of black silk, cunningly shot with silver threads. Her ruff was vast, her farthingale vaster, and her train, which was very long, was borne by a marchioness who made more ado about it than Elizabeth did of ruling her realm.

Natural Lightning Rods.

The tall Lombardy poplar has a reputation in some parts of Europe as a kind of natural lightning rod. Investigations recently made by Dr. Hess in Switzerland appear to confirm this reputation of the tree. Its wood is an unusually good conductor of electricity as compared with others, while its great height and lack of spreading branches enable it to conduct a lightning stroke straight downward. In order, however, that a poplar tree may serve to protect a building, according to Dr. Hess, its foliage should be allowed to grow as near the ground as possible. It should be removed not less than six or seven feet from the nearest wall. No metallic objects on the building should be near the tree, and its roots should penetrate moist soil.

His Language.

A statement made in good faith, but difficult to accept, was recently offered to his congregation by a country pastor. He had been holding forth on the advantages of plain speaking.

"Why, brethren," he said, bringing his hand down upon the pulpit with great vigor, "there's no need of all these long words and high sounding terms, not a bit. Look at St. Paul! His words were full of the meat of knowledge and help, and he didn't make use of any highfalutin talk. He always spoke in plain, simple English, my brethren."—Youth's Companion.

Malayan Marriages.

On the Molucca islands the wives are treated very tenderly by their husbands. The priest who performs the marriage ceremony over a Malayan bridal couple gives to the husband the following monition: "Do not wound your wife with the lance or knife. If she refuses to obey you, take her into a room by herself and chastise her with a handkerchief." Provided the cloth is not tied into a dozen knots, no more gentle method of reproval could be devised.—St. Louis Republic.

The Euphrates.

John Punnett Peters, in his book, "Nippur, or Explorations on the Euphrates," thus describes that great river of history:

"The Euphrates now flows through a dismal desert, a stream of muddy water, with tamarisk and poplar jungles, while hamlets and dura fields and a few small towns and villages occupy a narrow, deep depression in a sterile, treeless plateau, inhabited only by nomads. But this has not always been the case. In ancient times Mesopotamia, from the river Khabur northward and westward, seems to have been fairly well wooded, well inhabited and prosperous, while the Syrian side of the river, from the bend by Barbalissus and upward, was rich and densely settled, and even to the south and east of this the ruins of important cities may still be found, and the Assyrian annals tell of forests in the same direction, remnants of which have been but lately rediscovered. In times of prosperity and progress and when a strong power controlled part or the whole of the Euphrates valley, civilization invaded the desert and established posts and roads, which checked and drove back the Arabs and extended the area of cultivable land."

Laws of Teaching.

(1) "There is no school," says Mr. J. M. Greenwood, "unless the father, the mother, the teacher and the pupil keep school together. (2) Know thoroughly the subject to be taught and explain to the pupil why you teach it. (3) Gain and keep the attention of the pupils. Excite their interest. (4) In your teaching use language that your pupils understand. (5) Begin with the known and go by easy steps to the unknown. Take the whole class with you. (6) Excite self activity in the pupils and lead each to discover truth. Show the class how to study. (7) In each lesson let a halt be made, and then have pupils fix points already made, the conclusions reached and the premises upon which each conclusion is based. (8) The teaching must touch the whole nature of the child and stimulate to higher action and more industrious habits of work, of silence, of obedience, honesty and truthfulness. Three-fourths of education is a habit of work."—New York Ledger.

This week the Panhandle officials will make some interesting experiments with air brakes on the Chicago division. Wrecks occasionally occur to trains thus equipped, and the object is to familiarize the trainmen with the results of a train breaking in two, etc., in order that they may act intelligently when accidents occur.

A Massachusetts railroad company has issued an order for all employes of its road to address all women patrons as "Madam," instead of "Lady," "Mrs." or "Miss," and now the elderly lady, middle aged, new or summer girl all receive the same address. The employes of the road who have tried it say that the women give the new form of address the smile of approval.

The storm which visited this section last night assumed the form of a cloud burst south of the city and the territory lying between Richmond and Decatur was badly flooded. The Grand Rapids company has arranged to put on two gravel trains at Richmond this morning and the crews had been selected and were in readiness when a telegram came, stating that the gravel pits were full of water and could not be worked for two or three days. The storm was also very severe between Wabash and this city, along the Wabash railroad, the growing corn being broken down and the fields in low lands overflowed.

A CLEAR CASE.

An Example of Justice In the Early Days of the West.

"Don't question anything you hear about the administration of justice in the early days of the west," advised the man who had dug and prospected over a large part of it in search of a fortune. "I've seen men out there acting as magistrates that could neither read, write nor talk with an approach to correctness in any language.

"I recall one instance up near the head of Bitter creek. While a miner was down at the saloon one night enjoying himself after the manner of such men, some one stole into his hut and dug up the bags of dust he had buried there. Upon discovery of the theft there was a great hue and cry raised, a sheriff's posse was called on and a young fellow from the east, little better than a tenderfoot, was arrested for the crime. He didn't look guilty or act guilty and there was a good deal of sympathy for him among the boys, otherwise the regular formula of justice might not have been observed.

"When the trial came on, the young man had a lawyer that he had sent for and who made it interesting for the prosecutor, who relied largely upon lung power and sledge hammer blows. Inside of two hours it was proved by evidence that could not be questioned that the prisoner had spent the entire night with a friend at his shanty three miles from camp. Outside of what the friend swore to a number had seen the prisoner going out in the evening and returning in the morning. Even the prosecution was generous enough to admit at last that a perfect alibi had been proved.

"'That's no mistake about it,' roared the court in order to emphasize his indignation, 'it has been proved that this measly, slick tongued hypocrit has committed a alerbi. I sentence him to six months' hard labor.'

"And it took half a day to get the sentence annulled."—Detroit Free Press.

A Legal Curiosity.

It has thus become an actual court paper and may be seen by any one who wishes to examine the public records. The sheriff is said to have called to his assistance a young Georgian, now locally known as "the Everglades poet:"

HIS FEARFUL FINISH.

[illegible]

He schemed with great facility and marvelous ability the conquest of a harem in a week,
And he struck the height eyed forms of the blue begum Chinese so dumb with love that none of them could speak.

In the far antarctic regions he was worshiped by whale begum, and the debutantes of Chime close to him
Way up north, all frozen solid, where the Esquimaux are stolid there he warmed each maiden's heart up to the brim.

But upon one fatal morning, all his other conquests scorning, to old Narragansett Pier he took his flight,
And when the girls there found him they just wrapped their arms around him, and then hazed him and they hazed him out of sight.

A Brassy Boy.

A small boy cyclist was riding without a light and was stopped by a park officer, who asked him in gruff tones where his light was.

"Why, it's here," exclaimed the rider in surprise.

"Yes, but it's out," solemnly asserted the patrolman.

"Well, it was lighted at that last turn."

"Sonny, it's cold; couldn't have been lighted this evening," triumphantly announced the officer.

"Huh! That thin metal cools in a minute. I'll light that lamp and wait until it gets redhot, put it out, then ride to the next corner and back, and when I return it'll be cold."

"All right. Try it," assented the astute policeman.

The boy lighted the lantern, waited until it grew redhot, turned it out and started, and that kid is going yet.—Philadelphia Press.

A DISASTER AVERTED.

The Captain Was Alert and Saved the Great Battleship.

The brand new battleship Demolisher had been thrown open to visitors. Her captain stood at the gangway receiving his guests, pride and delight in his magnificent vessel shining in every lineament. Suddenly his gaze concentrated upon an approaching figure. His face grew pale to the lips, he shook in every fibre. Controlling his terror by a mighty effort he turned hastily to his executive officer.

"Clear for action, Mr. Blunder," he cried. "Beat to quarters. Load with grape. Order the marines to concentrate behind me here, prepared to repel boarders."

"Aye, aye, sir," responded the officer promptly, although thoroughly bewildered.

The flood returned to the captain's face, and he regained his composure as he marked how quickly his orders were carried out and how they were prepared to meet his formidable foe successfully. Then his eyes again sought the object of his fears. He was close aboard.

"Hello, cap'n!" he cried, a vacuous smile playing about his weak mouth.

"Back!" shouted the captain sternly. "Back, or I'll blow you up!"

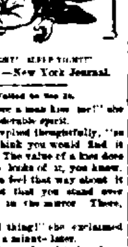

"Say, cap'n, that's what you seem to be doin'," responded the enemy, giggling.

"Don't you try to set foot on board my ship," continued the captain vehemently. "I'm not going to jeopardize boat and crew for your pleasure."

"Oh, say, cap'n," remonstrated the enemy, with a silly grin, "don't you know me?"

"You bet I do," replied the captain fervently. "You're the idiot that rocks the boat, and you shall not come on board mine."—Alex Ricketts in New York Truth.

HIRONS' VEGETONE.

It Can be Procured at Your Druggists.

The Hirons Double Treatment for Catarrh and Hay Fever.

The Hiron's New Asthma and Cough Cure for Asthma, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, Coughs and Colds, Throat and Lung Troubles.

Vegetone is purely vegetable in its composition. It is a reliable and permanent cure for diseases of the liver and kidneys, constipation, chills, malarial fever, loss of appetite, and a sure and effectual cure for headache and dyspepsia.

Vegetone acts by giving tone to the stomach, strengthening the liver and kidneys, and assists these most important organs in throwing off the impurities in the blood. Every person, in the spring of the year, needs a good, safe tonic for the replenishing of the system after a winter of inactivity, and Vegetone will produce the desired effects, being purely vegetable and a mild, pleasant laxative, thus throwing off the bile from the stomach, producing new vigor.

A Hay Fever Victim Made Happy.

The Hirons Medicine Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.

GENTLEMEN:—I have been afflicted with Hay Fever in its most malignant form for years. The first attack would appear in June. During August and September my sufferings were intense. Water would run from my eyes and nose, the paroxysm of sneezing were uncontrollable, and I had terrible burning pains in my head. I learned of your Double Treatment for Catarrh and Hay-Fever and procured it at once. After having used three bottles of the remedies I was entirely cured. I heartily endorse your valuable medicine, and advise all Hay-Fever sufferers to give it a trial. (Signed.)

CATARRH.

What the Resident Manager of the Chicago Newspaper Union has to Say

The Hirons Medicine Company, Fort Wayne, Ind.

GENTLEMEN:—Your Mr. A. R. Hirons persuaded me to give your Double Treatment for catarrh a trial, and after having used it about 30 days, I can honestly say that the results have been very satisfactory. I have been a sufferer from the disease since childhood, and was so bad at times that the membrane would bleed constantly. By the use of your medicine I have stopped the bleeding, my head is greatly relieved, and I have no more difficulty with my breathing. Yours truly

CHARLES D. TILLO.

A Word From Charles Yagerlehner, the Electrician.

DEAR SIRS:—I have had a bad case of catarrh for 14 years. There was a constant dripping of mucous into my throat. Every morning my nose, head and throat would be filled up. After a terrible siege of trying to remove the mucous I would become so sick that it was with difficulty that I could eat my breakfast. I had no appetite. The disease developed into bronchitis and dyspepsia. I read of your Double Treatment for Catarrh, and after having used your remedies for a short time, I can cheerfully say that now my appetite is good, I have no more trouble with indigestion, my throat is well, and my general health has not been as good for years.

[Signed]

CHARLES YAGERLEHNER.

Respectfully yours.

Miss Anna Schorph, who resides at 118 W. Superior St., says: "I take great pleasure in signing the following statement: All my life I have been afflicted with a bronchial cough. A year ago I had a hemorrhage of the lungs. Since that time for months I have been troubled with hemorrhages. I was advised by a friend to use your New Asthma and Cough Cure. I have taken four bottles of the remedy. I have no more soreness in my lungs and the hemorrhages have ceased. I cannot say enough in the praise of your medicine.

Had Asthma for Twenty Years.

The Hirons Medicine Company, Room 3 Schmitz Block, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Dear Sirs:—I had Asthma for twenty years. I treated with physicians in St. Louis and in other cities, and have used many remedies, but never received any relief that ever until I commenced the use of your New Asthma and Cough Cure. Before I had used one bottle I received great relief, and after having used four bottles I am entirely cured. I am happy to recommend your remedy to all who are suffering from Asthma. May the Lord bless you and your wonderful medicine.

"Where the road turns to the left at Grand View, walk out over the salient of rock at the angle itself, sit down on the farthest chimney shaft, over rocks naturally white, but now blackened by weathering. If possible, go there in the morning or in the latter part of the afternoon. At noontime the light is too strong, and the details of the canyon are smothered, and the individuality of the walls killed. But with a soft morning or afternoon light every detail of one or the other of the walls leaps out from the general mass as if instinct with life. And what a wonderful sea it is that lies beneath and beyond us. A painted sea not of water but of rock. And such painting! Try to distinguish the decided colors and their infinite variations. The most wonderful part of it is the rare blending, where one fades into another, and yet thou canst detect neither the beginning nor the ending."

A few days ago Mr. Ainslie and the boys caught forty fish, some of which were fine black bass weighing between one and two pounds. The glory of a St. Lawrence fisherman is to land a muskallonge, and if the pastor don't secure one he will return home disappointed. Mr. Ainslie says that the weather is ideal, the scenery surpassingly beautiful, the air clear and bracing, so that living is a luxury; but the usual crowd of tourists to the Thousand Islands is not seen, probably owing to the hard times.

TOLEDO WON

An Exciting Game in the Lake City.

A Lucky Home Run on a Lost Ball Won the Game for the Mud Hens.

Several hundred rooters went to Toledo to see Marcum play the Mud Hens and up to the seventh the game looked easy. The home team won by the sheerest sort of luck. After making enough errors to lose several games against a club that put up an errorless game, Toledo won out on a little pop-up by Langford, which was lost in the grass, letting the hit count for a home run. Many thought it was foul. The score:

Toledo . . . 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 2 1—6
Fort Wayne 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 4 0—5

Hits—Toledo, 9; Fort Wayne, 6. Errors—Toledo, 5. Batteries—Keenan and Arthur; Minnehan and O'Meara. Umpire—Easton.

Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 2.—The game was hotly contested at all corners. Brown and Cogswell showed great generalship in the box, and, while the visitors secured more hits from Brown than the locals did from Cogswell, they counted for naught. The two errors made in the game were not expensive. The score:

Dayton . . . 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0—3
Springfield 1 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0—2

Batteries—Brown and Kellner, Cogswell and Rupert. Hits—Dayton, 6; Springfield, 8. Errors—Dayton, 1; Springfield, 1.

Kihm has played in the most games. Fitch is below Herr, who leads the pitchers. The team has dropped some on the trip, but seven men still average from .315 up to .344:

WILL NOT DEAL WITH GLENALVIN.

Regarding a story sent out from Toledo about Glenalvin being here from Grand Rapids, with a view to either consolidating the Toledo and Grand Rapids teams and transferring the Western league franchise from Grand Rapids to Toledo, or selling the Grand Rapids team and franchise outright to Manager Strobel, the latter says:

"I will have no dealings with Glenalvin, and he ought to know it. I had all I wanted with him when I was on the Pacific coast. Mr. Loudley is all right, and if there is any talk of business it will have to be with him. Not one word has thus far been said to be about such a deal, and I am not prepared to say what I might do."

NOTES.

Cooke yesterday made two hits, but he spoiled his record with an error.

Thayer Torreyson has signed with New Castle. He will soon have made the rounds of the Inter-State clubs.

The league circuit will remain just as it is, the directors last Friday declining to admit Jackson, Mich., or Erie, Pa., in Wheeling's place.

The Mud Hens seem to be enjoying all the luck that was New Castle's at the beginning of the season. Fort Wayne has to win all its games on their merits.

"This is the time of the year when minor leagues begin to grasp for breath, but the Inter-State has strong lungs and is full of life," says President Power.

"Bobby" Gilks, of Toledo, and Frank Torreyson, of Dayton, are after the Wheeling franchise. Manager Herrington is trying to organize a local stock company. It is assured the club will remain in Wheeling.

Mansfield Shield: "Latham for first base, Manager Howard. You manage the team, but let Jolly Arlie play in the game. If you want to play the big let Arlie play somewhere on the nine. He's pretty good, and then the ginger he's got."

Manager William Meyer telegraphs The Sentinel from Toledo that Eddie O'Meara has been appointed captain of the Fort Wayne team.

Big John Ganzel, the first baseman sold last winter by New Castle to Grand Rapids in the Western league, is out of the game, and may be for some time. At Kansas City Ganzel was spiked on the knee, and the color from the red stockings he was wearing ran in the sore. As a result he is suffering from a mild case of blood poisoning.

Mansfield News: "That man Bob Gilks doesn't make many home runs, but anyhow he does 'face' 'em out when a single will count for his side. Gilks' all-around work yesterday was something great. He came in back of second base no less than three times and gathered in what the spectators had mentally chalked up as safe hits. There are better outfielders in the business, no doubt, than Bob Gilks, but they are not in the Inter-State league since Fred Cooke, of Fort Wayne, went to Cleveland."

Mansfield News: "Van Giesen went to South Bend, Ind., last night, where he will pitch for an independent ball team. Van will get $150 per month. Before leaving the ex-Mansfield pitcher received a railroad ticket and two weeks' salary in advance. Toledo has been dickering with Van Giesen. It seems that one of the Toledo pitchers is to be sold and as soon as the deal is consummated Van will join the leaders." Jack Welch, Grant and Eggert have also joined the South Bends.

An exchange says: "Charles Strobel, manager of the Toledo base ball club, offers to wager $500 that his team can defeat Pittsburg in a series of seven games, three to be played in each city and the final game, if necessary, on other grounds. Toledo is very strong, but the chances are that if Pittsburg accepts Charley will be sorry that he spoke." The Sentinel doesn't believe Strobel ever made such a proposition, although he has a chance to win at that.

He found Mrs. Rose Venson, of Logansport, in great distress over the loss of her pocketbook containing $5.53 and a ticket to Angola, where she intended to go on the next train. Mrs. Venson said that a woman picked up the pocketbook and disappeared quickly before she could summon assistance.
